Richland Draft Quotas to Be Tripled

2,500 WILL BE INDUCTED IN NEXT 7 MONTHS

60 Per Cent of Selectees Slated For Service To Be From Old Lists.

DIP INTO 3-A CLASS

February Registrants Won't Be Called Until July 1, Officials Indicate.

The chances of Richland county men now in the 3-A draft classification escaping army service this year became slimmer today with the announcement that the county's draft boards will be asked to induct three times as many men in the next seven months as the total number already inducted.

On that basis, Richland county must send approximately 2,500 more men to camps by next Oct. 1. The county has inducted more than 800 men since the selective service law became operative in the fall of 1940.

Richland county sent between 1,500 and 2,000 men to the army, navy and Marine corps during the first World war, Commander Sam V. Fox of McVey post, American Legion, estimated.

So far in this war, more than 1,100 Richland countians have been inducted into the army or enlisted in the regular army, navy, and Marine corps. If the quota is met by October, the

N-J To Publish Draft Serial Numbers

Names and serial numbers assigned to nearly 5,000 Richland county men who registered in February under the selective service law will be published in The News-Journal next Sunday. Publication of the serial numbers assigned early this week by the draft boards will enable the new registrants to find their numbers without going to their draft board headquarters for the information. The serial numbers will be used in the national lottery in Washington Tuesday night when the order numbers are drawn from the traditional goldfish bowl.

Asks Police to Hunt for Missing Jewelry Salesman

Police learned today that a Mansfield jewelry salesman, carrying $1,400 worth of jewelry samples, has been missing since last Saturday when he visited a Mount Vernon customer on his sales route.

Leo T. Zeidman, manager of Shaw's Jewelry company store, reported that F. M. Christensen, 39, of 69 North Weldon avenue, had not been seen since last Saturday.

Zeidman said that he had checked with customers along the route and learned that Christensen made his last visit on Saturday.

Mrs. Christensen told The News-Journal that her husband had left for Chicago on a business trip last Saturday and had planned to return to this city this week. She said that she had had no word of him since

Fight Looms On Gasoline Sale Curfew

Oil Companies Say They Will Fight Ordinance Now Before Mayor.

At least two oil companies operating gasoline filling stations in Mansfield were ready today to file injunction actions to prevent enforcement of the city's filling station curfew ordinance if, and when, Mayor W. J. Locke signs the ordinance into law or it automatically becomes a law in 10 days without the mayor's signature.

Sponsored by the Mansfield Gasoline Retailers association, the curfew measure was passed Tuesday night by a 6-to-2 vote of city council. It would close the city's filling stations at 7 p. m. weekdays and 1 p. m. Sunday. Opening time would be set at 7 a. m. daily.

Mayor Locke has not signed the ordinance and indicated today that he may not sign it in view of the threatened action of the oil companies.

"I don't think the measure is constitutional, and, besides, there's no point in signing it now and forcing the city to defend injunction suits," the mayor said.

He added that he had received information from Washington that the federal oil production board may take a hand in the gasoline situation within a few days and make a city curfew law unnecessary. He said he would "wait to see if something develops in Washington before making up his mind about the ordinance."

Attorneys for the Standard Oil company of Ohio and the Fair Price company were in the city yesterday to learn the status of the ordinance. Representatives of both firms said they were ready to bring actions immediately in common pleas court for temporary injunctions against enforcement of the curfew law when it becomes operative. It would make violators liable for payment of fines up to $100.

Attorney Maurice F. Hanning of Cleveland, representing the Standard Oil company of Ohio, said, "We will immediately appeal to common pleas court for a temporary injunction and later for a permanent injunction against the

OFFERS REWARD

Auto Club Posts $25 To Help Apprehend Tire Thieves.

Richland county Automobile club went to the aid of club members today in an effort to discourage the theft of tires from their automobiles.

Club Secretary Frank Beverstock said the club had posted a standing offer of $25 for the conviction of any person stealing a tire from a club member's car.

The offer, he said, was made by the club's board of directors in an effort to discourage the theft of tires in Richland county and at the same time to spur others to report to police persons tampering with automobiles.

At the same time the board voted to purchase $3,000 in defense bonds. It is the first purchase of the kind to be made by the club for investment purposes, Beverstock said.

Even Tax Paying Suffers At Hands of Friday, 13th

Payments Lag at Courthouse and Officials There Say Bugaboo's to Blame; Stork's on Job Regardless.

That old Friday the 13th bugaboo looked Mansfielders right in the face again today for the second time in two months and some of the careful ones who detour around ladders and black cats were living carefully until the traditionally "bad luck" day rolls into history.

For no reason at all tax payments at the courthouse dropped off to the lowest mark in recent weeks, so county officials attributed the decline to the large number of superstitious people who don't want to do anything as unpleasant as paying taxes on Friday the 13th.

Some persons probably wouldn't even venture downtown today for fear of running into trouble, and that may have had something to do with the absence of taxpayers, officials said.

At General hospital, a son was born to Mr and Mrs. Lester Sharrock, 192 Marion avenue, at 3:13 a. m., on the 13th. That combination of 13's didn't seem to bother the youngster a bit.

A youth who attempted to ride his bicycle under a ladder in front of the Madison theater early today couldn't be blamed for believing there's something to this Friday the 13th superstition. He also knows ladders are no luck pieces, either.

He failed to see a metal strip about chin-high across the two sections of the ladder and it started him on a double somersault backwards. The bicycle shot upward and landed with a crash. Bruised a little, the rider picked himself up, brushed off his clothing, and rode on, probably wishing they'd do something about eliminating Fridays when they come on the 13th.

New Fire Hits Normandie, But It's Quickly Extinguished.

NEW YORK—(INS)—A small fire broke out in a pile of rubbish in a hold of the U. S. S. Lafayette, formerly the Normandie, but was quickly extinguished today.

City fire apparatus and a fireboat responded to one alarm which was turned in from the North river pier where the capsized ship lies in 40 feet of water.

The $60,000,000 vessel has a salvage crew aboard pending decision on whether the former luxury liner can be righted. The fire which swept the ship last February 9 brought death to one man and injuries to two score. Navy and congressional investigations still are in progress into cause of the fire.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—A fire alarm sent two pump companies, a hook-and-ladder truck and an assistant chief dashing to a west side home.

They found a pan of scorched prunes! If you think the housewife was embarrassed, consider Fireman Ralph Lombard, who arrived on one pumper. It was his house.

UNCOVERS FLAW IN TRAFFIC CODE

Attorney's Client Freed as Court Finds Driving Charge Lacked Authority.

Mansfield police learned yesterday that as far as city ordinances are concerned they are without authority to arrest motorists on charges of reckless and careless operation of cars.

Their warrants for such offenses must be drawn under state laws, all because a city regulation for such offenses was omitted last fall when the city's new traffic code was passed by council.

As a result one half the fines paid by drivers arrested for careless operation will be paid into state funds and the other half to the city. When the city ordinance is corrected, the city will receive all fines paid for arrests under city affidavits.

This startling revelation came about in municipal court when John O'Donnell, Mansfield attorney, won a dismissal of an unsafe operation charge against his client.

LETTERS SHOW VOTERS FAVOR U.S. SALES TAX

Method Preferred Over Boost In Present Levies or New Ones.

IT'S ELECTION YEAR

Congressmen Have Ears Glued To Home Ground For Signs of Sentiment.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A survey of Congressional Mail, reflecting the sentiment of the people back home, today revealed that the taxpayer greatly favors a general federal sales tax over other proposed new or increased levies as a means of financing the war.

Legislative advocates of the sales tax predicted that after the deadline three days hence for payment of present heavy income taxes, this volume of mail will reach sufficient proportions to enable them to override administration opposition and write this levy into the new tax bill.

Many income tax payers, especially in the lower and middle brackets, it was pointed out, are finding that the imposts due March 16 are triple or even quadruple what they were a year ago.

On top of this, these payers now know that the treasury plans to double these already stiffly increased levies a year hence. All of this, sales tax advocates say, will lead to much letter writing to congressmen, pleading for some other form of taxation—and about the only other form yet untapped is a levy on retail purchases.

This is an election year, and congressional ears are glued to the ground. If the people express a desire for a sales tax, that is probably what they will get, most members agree.

There is, too, the case of the congressman himself—as pointed out by one. Married members now pay about $1,000 out of their $10,000 salaries in income taxes, while single members are hit for some $1,500.

Congressmen are not allowed to deduct campaign expenses in computing income taxes, and many members feel that if these levies are doubled they will be unable to meet these and other expenses.

7 SENTENCED

Spies Ordered to Spend Total of 117 Years In Prison.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard today sentenced seven persons—defendants in the nation's first spy trial since the United States entered the war—to a total of 117 years in prison for espionage conspiracy.

Three were given 20 years' imprisonment each; three others, including a woman, 15 years each, and one 12 years.

Judge Goddard, in passing sentence, told the defendants he was "not only punishing you for your treachery," but "warning others like you that such acts will not be tolerated."

Survivors Tell How Sub Rammed Two Lifeboats

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — The tale of a merciless submarine crew which first sank a tanker by shellfire and then ran down and smashed through two lifeboats was entered today in the ever-growing sea legends of the second World war.

It was told by four survivors of a crew of 38 aboard a medium-sized U. S. tanker which went down in the Caribbean sea Feb. 28. For more than a week they drifted on two small rafts after the submarine, striking without warning, fired about 200 shells into their ship. The quartet was picked up by another ship on March 5 and landed here Tuesday night.

The navy confirmed the ship's loss yesterday, but under a new policy, did not make public its name. Its sinking has been reported in earlier dispatches, however, and the navy announcement did not increase the Axis submarine toll.

Navy Spearhead Driving Toward Solomon Isles

British Imperials Make Contact With Chinese North of Rangoon, Attempt To Form New Front; Sub, Air Raids Cripple Invasion Attempt.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Five American flying fortresses have struck more blows at the spearheads of an impending Japanese drive against Australia, destroying airdrome buildings, wrecking runways at Salamaua and Lae in New Guinea, and shooting down five enemy fighter planes, the war department announced today.

(By Associated Press)

Japan's offensive against Australia, still taking form in the welter of islands curving along the vast northern shore of the continent, has speared off in a tangent of naval penetration of the Solomon islands.

In the second chief theater of the war with Japan, the British imperials withdrawing north of Rangoon, have for the first time joined Chinese troops, attempting to consolidate a front between two main routes out of Rangoon, 60 to 80 miles from the abandoned port city of the Irrawaddy delta.

Japan's Solomon islands move was evidently either a feint to distract attention from establishment of New Guinea bases for the prospective lunge at Australia or actually a thrust toward the New Hebrides and New Zealand along the island chain pointed at the United Nations sea route to Australia, ahead of any direct attempt to invade the continent.

The move was disclosed by Australian air reconnaissance over the Australian-mandated part of the Solomon group. The warship force was sighted three days ago off Kessa, on tiny Buka island, a stepping stone from New Britain to the Solomons. There was no further indication that the Japanese had landed there.

Buka is 180 miles southeast of Japanese-occupied Rabaul, New Britain, and 900 miles northeast of Australia's northeastern extremity, the Cape York peninsula.

Australian bombers smashing at the potential island route toward New Zealand attacked the enemy-held airfield at Gasmata, on the south coast of New Britain, yesterday.

"All our bombs fell in the target area and columns of smoke rose from the ground," a communique said. Counter-attacking Japanese fighting planes were beaten off.

The Japanese offensive was crippled to some extent in the sinking of seven ships by air attack last Tuesday off Salamaua, a Japanese foothold in New Guinea. Closer at home for the enemy, a single United States submarine has picked off four vessels, boosting to 149 the total of Japanese ships destroyed or damaged by U. S. forces.

A newspaper dispatch broadcast from Tokyo declared the Japanese had won "the last strategical point off the northern part of Australia" through their occupa-

FULL SWING: British, Russian Drives Beat Hitler to Punch

(By Associated Press)

Germany's springtime offensive waited today on the calendar, propitious circumstances and Adolf Hitler, but Britain's and Russia's offensives—in the air and on the land, respectively, were in full swing.

The British announced a fire-raising raid on the great German naval base of Kiel while the Red army, having beaten Hitler to the springtime punch, was battering its way across the Donets basin.

Via Stockholm came word that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko and his southern army of from one and a quarter to one and a half million men had forced the enemy to draw once more on reserves being prepared for German's own offensive effort.

The Germans admitted they still were on the defensive against "strong enemy forces" in the Donets region—gateway to the Caucasus.

London observers held that the objective of Timoshenko's 90 divisions was the Dnieper bend, natural defense line in the heart of the Ukraine.

Unofficial reports have placed them only 30 to 40 miles from this goal.

Although the calendar spring is but a week away, snow on the Staraya Russa front, below Leningrad, was reported so deep that ski troops still had to carry the burden of the fighting against the entrapped 16th German army.

Apparently attempting to neutralize Kiel as a base for springtime adventures of the German fleet, the RAF unloaded new bombs on shipyards there for the 65th time overnight and the "many fires" resulting told de-

FIRM: Corregidor Fort Still Holds After Heaviest Bombing

(By United Press)

WITH GEN. M'ARTHUR'S ARMY, In the Philippines—(Delayed)—Corregidor, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's fortress island in the mouth of Manila bay, stands firm today after taking what its men believe to be, pound for pound and acre for acre, the heaviest airplane bombing attacks on record.

It has cost the Japanese 120 planes officially claimed and many more damaged and undoubtedly downed to bomb Corregidor. Nearly one-half of some attacking fleets, heavy, medium, light and dive bombers, have been shot down by the island's guns.

Recently, the Japanese have confined themselves largely to nuisance and reconnaissance raids, and Corregidor, its battle scars disappearing and the Stars and Stripes flying from its highest point, continues to be the greatest headache of the Japanese war lords.

Aside from the bombings they have stood up under, bombings which they believe to be heavier than those on such places as Malta, Chungking and Coventry considering that Corregidor is only 15 square miles in area, the men of the fortress claim another record.

The crews of the great coastal guns say these are the first American sea coast guns to be fired at an enemy target since the Civil war. They say that maybe this claim may be disputed but at least they are the first to be fired on an enemy ground troop concentration.

That was when the 14-inch mortars knocked out a Japanese force which landed on the coast,

Describes Government Lack of Knowledge About Available Rubber Source As 'Incomprehensible'

New Yorker Reveals That Florida Man Possesses Secret Process.

By KINGSBURY SMITH

(INS Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON — Charging that the government's lack of knowledge concerning available rubber sources is "incomprehensible," Elliott E. Simpson, director of the Dressage Rubber company, New York, today issued a statement asserting that hundreds of thousands of tons of various types of rubber can be obtained quickly in Latin America and Africa.

Simpson's statement also claimed that a Florida planter has discovered a secret process for developing hybrid hevea rubber which may eventually make the United States entirely self-sufficient in that vital product.

"The Mexican government is now seeking to obtain the secret process for developing this hybrid hevea rubber," Simpson said. "The American planter, J. Andrew Tatro, of Tampa, Fla., has not accepted the Mexican government's offer because he wants his discovery to be developed 'under the American flag.'

"His secret process was tested by the Goodyear Plantation company of Akron, in April, 1940. The test proved that this man's hybrid hevea rubber is as good as the standard grade crude rubber.

Declares Vast Supplies Obtainable In Latin America.

"It can be produced for three cents per pound at a yield of 800 pounds per acre. We paid the British 18 cents per pound for rubber before the outbreak of the Pacific war, and we have now, agreed to pay Brazil 39 cents per pound. Yet here we have an American who says he

NEW YORK—(INS)—A small fire broke out in a pile of rubbish in a hold of the U. S. S. Lafayette, formerly the Normandie, but was quickly extinguished today.

City fire apparatus and a fireboat responded to one alarm which was turned in from the North river pier where the capsized ship lies in 40 feet of water.

The $60,000,000 vessel has a salvage crew aboard pending decision on whether the former luxury liner can be righted. The fire which swept the ship last February 9 brought death to one man and injuries to two score. Navy and congressional investigations still are in progress into cause of the fire.

DID HE BLUSH?

Fireman Answers Call; It's Burnt Prunes At His House!

COLUMBUS—(AP)—A fire alarm sent two pump companies, a hook-and-ladder truck and an assistant chief dashing to a west side home.

They found a pan of scorched prunes! If you think the housewife was embarrassed, consider Fireman Ralph Lombard, who arrived on one pumper. It was his house.

UNCOVERS FLAW IN TRAFFIC CODE

Attorney's Client Freed as Court Finds Driving Charge Lacked Authority.

Mansfield police learned yesterday that as far as city ordinances are concerned they are without authority to arrest motorists on charges of reckless and careless operation of cars.

Their warrants for such offenses must be drawn under state laws, all because a city regulation for such offenses was omitted last fall when the city's new traffic code was passed by council.

As a result one half the fines paid by drivers arrested for careless operation will be paid into state funds and the other half to the city. When the city ordinance is corrected, the city will receive all fines paid for arrests under city affidavits.

This startling revelation came about in municipal court when John O'Donnell, Mansfield attorney, won a dismissal of an unsafe operation charge against his client

JAPS REPORT NURSES MOVED

Taken With Service Men From Guam to Kobe.

TOKYO — (Japanese Broadcast Recorded by (UP) at San Francisco)—Tokyo radio said today that five American nurses and six retired American service men, who had been held in custody among American war prisoners at Guam since Jan. 15, have been transferred to Kobe for light confinement among the civilian internees.

The five nurses, the radio said, were Marian B. Bolds, Hanover, Md., Lorraine Dickenson, Salt Lake City, Virginia Josephine Fogarty, Akron, O., Leona Jackson, Union, O., and Dorris Yetter, Philadelphia.

LETTERS SHOW VOTERS FAVOR U.S. SALES TAX

Method Preferred Over Boost In Present Levies or New Ones.

IT'S ELECTION YEAR

Congressmen Have Ears Glued To Home Ground For Signs of Sentiment.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A survey of Congressional Mail, reflecting the sentiment of the people back home, today revealed that the taxpayer greatly favors a general federal sales tax over other proposed new or increased levies as a means of financing the war.

Legislative advocates of the sales tax predicted that after the deadline three days hence for payment of present heavy income taxes, this volume of mail will reach sufficient proportions to enable them to override administration opposition and write this levy into the new tax bill.

Many income tax payers, especially in the lower and middle brackets, it was pointed out, are finding that the imposts due March 16 are triple or even quadruple what they were a year ago.

On top of this, these payers now know that the treasury plans to double these already stiffly increased levies a year hence. All of this, sales tax advocates say, will lead to much letter writing to congressmen, pleading for some other form of taxation—and about the only other form yet untapped is a levy on retail purchases.

This is an election year, and congressional ears are glued to the ground. If the people express a desire for a sales tax, that is probably what they will get, most members agree.

There is, too, the case of the congressman himself—as pointed out by one. Married members now pay about $1,000 out of their $10,000 salaries in income taxes, while single members are hit for some $1,500.

Congressmen are not allowed to deduct campaign expenses in computing income taxes, and many members feel that if these levies are doubled they will be unable to meet these and other expenses.

7 SENTENCED

Spies Ordered to Spend Total of 117 Years In Prison.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard today sentenced seven persons—defendants in the nation's first spy trial since the United States entered the war—to a total of 117 years in prison for espionage conspiracy.

Three were given 20 years' imprisonment each; three others, including a woman, 15 years each, and one 12 years.

Judge Goddard, in passing sentence, told the defendants he was "not only punishing you for your treachery," but "warning others like you that such acts will not be tolerated."

Survivors Tell How Sub Rammed Two Lifeboats

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — The tale of a merciless submarine crew which first sank a tanker by shellfire and then ran down and smashed through two lifeboats was entered today in the ever-growing sea legends of the second World war.

It was told by four survivors of a crew of 38 aboard a medium-sized U. S. tanker which went down in the Caribbean sea Feb. 28. For more than a week they drifted on two small rafts after the submarine, striking without warning, fired about 200 shells into their ship. The quartet was picked up by another ship on March 5 and landed here Tuesday night.

The navy confirmed the ship's loss yesterday, but under a new policy, did not make public its name. Its sinking has been reported in earlier dispatches, however, and the navy announcement did not increase the Axis submarine toll.

Navy Spearhead Driving Toward Solomon Isles

British Imperials Make Contact With Chinese North of Rangoon, Attempt To Form New Front; Sub, Air Raids Cripple Invasion Attempt.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Five American flying fortresses have struck more blows at the spearheads of an impending Japanese drive against Australia, destroying airdrome buildings, wrecking runways at Salamaua and Lae in New Guinea, and shooting down five enemy fighter planes, the war department announced today.

(By Associated Press)

Japan's offensive against Australia, still taking form in the welter of islands curving along the vast northern shore of the continent, has speared off in a tangent of naval penetration of the Solomon islands.

In the second chief theater of the war with Japan, the British imperials withdrawing north of Rangoon, have for the first time joined Chinese troops, attempting to consolidate a front between two main routes out of Rangoon, 60 to 80 miles from the abandoned port city of the Irrawaddy delta.

Japan's Solomon islands move was evidently either a feint to distract attention from establishment of New Guinea bases for the prospective lunge at Australia or actually a thrust toward the New Hebrides and New Zealand along the island chain pointed at the United Nations sea route to Australia, ahead of any direct attempt to invade the continent.

The move was disclosed by Australian air reconnaissance over the Australian-mandated part of the Solomon group. The warship force was sighted three days ago off Kessa, on tiny Buka island, a stepping stone from New Britain to the Solomons. There was no further indication that the Japanese had landed there.

Buka is 180 miles southeast of Japanese-occupied Rabaul, New Britain, and 900 miles northeast of Australia's northeastern extremity, the Cape York peninsula.

Australian bombers smashing at the potential island route toward New Zealand attacked the enemy-held airfield at Gasmata, on the south coast of New Britain, yesterday.

"All our bombs fell in the target area and columns of smoke rose from the ground," a communique said. Counter-attacking Japanese fighting planes were beaten off.

The Japanese offensive was crippled to some extent in the sinking of seven ships by air attack last Tuesday off Salamaua, a Japanese foothold in New Guinea. Closer at home for the enemy, a single United States submarine has picked off four vessels, boosting to 149 the total of Japanese ships destroyed or damaged by U. S. forces.

A newspaper dispatch broadcast from Tokyo declared the Japanese had won "the last strategical point off the northern part of Australia" through their occupa-

FULL SWING: British, Russian Drives Beat Hitler to Punch

(By Associated Press)

Germany's springtime offensive waited today on the calendar, propitious circumstances and Adolf Hitler, but Britain's and Russia's offensives—in the air and on the land, respectively, were in full swing.

The British announced a fire-raising raid on the great German naval base of Kiel while the Red army, having beaten Hitler to the springtime punch, was battering its way across the Donets basin.

Via Stockholm came word that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko and his southern army of from one and a quarter to one and a half million men had forced the enemy to draw once more on reserves being prepared for German's own offensive effort.

The Germans admitted they still were on the defensive against "strong enemy forces" in the Donets region—gateway to the Caucasus.

London observers held that the objective of Timoshenko's 90 divisions was the Dnieper bend, natural defense line in the heart of the Ukraine.

Unofficial reports have placed them only 30 to 40 miles from this goal.

Although the calendar spring is but a week away, snow on the Staraya Russa front, below Leningrad, was reported so deep that ski troops still had to carry the burden of the fighting against the entrapped 16th German army.

Apparently attempting to neutralize Kiel as a base for springtime adventures of the German fleet, the RAF unloaded new bombs on shipyards there for the 65th time overnight and the "many fires" resulting told de-

FIRM: Corregidor Fort Still Holds After Heaviest Bombing

(By United Press)

WITH GEN. M'ARTHUR'S ARMY, In the Philippines—(Delayed)—Corregidor, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's fortress island in the mouth of Manila bay, stands firm today after taking what its men believe to be, pound for pound and acre for acre, the heaviest airplane bombing attacks on record.

It has cost the Japanese 120 planes officially claimed and many more damaged and undoubtedly downed to bomb Corregidor. Nearly one-half of some attacking fleets, heavy, medium, light and dive bombers, have been shot down by the island's guns.

Recently, the Japanese have confined themselves largely to nuisance and reconnaissance raids, and Corregidor, its battle scars disappearing and the Stars and Stripes flying from its highest point, continues to be the greatest headache of the Japanese war lords.

Aside from the bombings they have stood up under, bombings which they believe to be heavier than those on such places as Malta, Chungking and Coventry considering that Corregidor is only 15 square miles in area, the men of the fortress claim another record.

The crews of the great coastal guns say these are the first American sea coast guns to be fired at an enemy target since the Civil war. They say that maybe this claim may be disputed but at least they are the first to be fired on an enemy ground troop concentration.

That was when the 14-inch mortars knocked out a Japanese force which landed on the coast,

Describes Government Lack of Knowledge About Available Rubber Source As 'Incomprehensible'

New Yorker Reveals That Florida Man Possesses Secret Process.

By KINGSBURY SMITH

(INS Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON — Charging that the government's lack of knowledge concerning available rubber sources is "incomprehensible," Elliott E. Simpson, director of the Droxsage Rubber company, New York, today issued a statement asserting that hundreds of thousands of tons of various types of rubber can be obtained quickly in Latin America and Africa.

Simpson's statement also claimed that a Florida planter has discovered a secret process for developing hybrid hevea rubber which may eventually make the United States entirely self-sufficient in that vital product.

"The Mexican government is now seeking to obtain the secret process for developing this hybrid hevea rubber," Simpson said. "The American planter, J. Andrew Tatro, of Tampa, Fla., has not accepted the Mexican government's offer because he wants his discovery to be developed 'under the American flag.'

"His secret process was tested by the Goodyear Plantation company of Akron, in April, 1940. The test proved that this man's hybrid hevea rubber is as good as the standard grade crude rubber.

tion of Salamaua, New Guinea port.

The United States submarine action was the latest of a series of blows against Japanese craft in Asiatic waters.

The navy department announced this operation near Emperor Hirohito's islands late yesterday. The victims were identified as "three enemy freighters and one passenger-cargo ship."

Japan's imperial headquarters said a Japanese destroyer sank a British minesweeper "in the course of cleaning up operations in the neighborhood of Java" and that Japanese fliers had levied a heavy toll in raids Wednesday upon Port Moresby, capital and chief port of New Guinea.

Sixteen Allied planes were said to have been destroyed and important military objectives were declared damaged at Port Moresby.

Announcement of the U. S. underseas offensive action—in keeping with President Roosevelt's declaration that "the war can be won only by contact with the enemies and by attack upon them"—was coupled with a report of the destruction of a four-motored Japanese seaplane by U. S. fighting planes defending Midway island.

Four fighters intercepted two large seaplanes Tuesday near the sun-bleached 850-acre island, 1,200 miles northwest of Honolulu, and shot one of them down, the navy said. The other escaped.

"One of our fighters was damaged and the pilot wounded," the naval communique went on. "He succeeded in returning to his base safely."

Midway, garrisoned by navy men and marines, is a naval air station and Pacific cable post.

Breathing spells were indicated in combat of both the southwest Pacific and Burma, while marshaling of manpower and equipment for further tests went on.

Diplomatically, a proposal by Japan, a pagan nation, for establishment of relations between Tokyo and Vatican City drew a protest from the United States. The state department announced last night it had made representations to the Vatican and a spokesman said the Japanese move was made solely to stir up trouble.

Declare Burma Front Stabilized

LONDON—(U.P.)—A new Delhi communique, published by the ministry of information, said today that the military situation in Burma was "stabilized around Tharrawaddy," about 70 miles northwest of Rangoon on the road to Prome.

Operations also are "proceeding" in the area of Nyaunglebin, 45 miles north of the Rangoon-to-Mandalay railroad junction town of Pegu, and in the area of Shwe-Gyin, on the east bank of the Sittang river about 10 miles east of Nyaunglebin, the communique of the British Indian command said.

Tharrawaddy is about 50 miles northwest of Pegu.

The communique indicated that the British now had pivoted their old north-south defense line on the lower Sittang to one running roughly northeastward, with the right flank swinging the 50 miles from Pegu to Tharrawaddy.

Nyaunglebin is about halfway to Toungoo, which is approximately half the Rangoon railroad (Burma road) distance to Mandalay.

Tharrawaddy, to the west, is nearly halfway to Prome on another route to Mandalay.

can produce rubber for three cents per pound and have the plant yielding in five months.

"The American government apparently has never heard of this man or his rubber plant. It's time somebody in the government started learning about rubber.

"A survey of the sources of rubber which are available to the United States at present shows conclusively that the supply is ample to meet the civilian as well as the defense needs for the duration of the war.

"There is absolutely no reason why the American people should be deprived of the use of their motor cars because of any rubber shortage. There is no reason for the government hysteria over the alleged lack of rubber.

"Not only are there large supplies of crude rubber available in Central and South America, but there are other types of rubber which can be made available quickly and which is good enough to meet both civilian and defense needs.

"Mr. Henderson, (federal price administrator) in his recent statement on the rubber shortage, warned the American people against 'holding out any hope of getting substantial amounts of rubber in the near future from . . . the guayule plant.' Somebody misled the poor man. There are millions of acres of guayule now available in Mexico.

"One Mexican land owner in the state of San Luis Potosi has 120,000 acres of wild guayule that he is trying to lease for five cents an acre. He has two processing plants already established on the land, yet he cannot find anyone who is interested.

"The apparent lack of knowledge of the government concerning available sources of rubber is incomprehensible. One cannot help but wonder whether it is ignorance or a deliberate attempt to perpetuate the British and Dutch rubber monopolies after the war."

and that she feared he had encountered foul play.

Police began an investigation of the case but have not issued a general search order as yet. Christensen has been employed with the Shaw Jewelry company for more than a year. He is described as being five feet, seven inches tall, weighs about 175 pounds, has a round face with a ruddy complexion, and is neatly dressed.

An affidavit for Christensen's arrest was issued in municipal court today upon the complaint of Barney Brizman, vice president of the Leed Drug company, who charged that Christensen had passed a check with insufficient funds.

parting bombardiers that their mission was achieved.

Naval installations were set afire and the 26,000-ton battleship Gneisenau, the battered fugitive from Brest, was also among the targets. Eight planes were lost, mostly to strong anti-aircraft batteries with which Kiel now is ringed.

German night fighters also engaged the RAF's "medium force" of four and two-engined bombers.

The British called the assault part of the "great spring offensive" launched last week-end to injure Germany at least on a western air front in indirect assistance of the Red army on her eastern front.

The British admiralty indicated Germany is exerting her full U-boat force in the battle of the Atlantic.

Three submarines reported on Jan. 3 to have been sunk in a "sustained and determined" attack on a British convoy in mid-December, the U-131, U-434 and U-574, were all commissioned in 1941, six months before their doom.

Intelligence from the U-boat prisoners, the admiralty announcement said, showed that in a half-year of action the aggregate success of the trio was the sinking of a merchant ship and the destroyer Stanley, formerly a United States vessel.

On the Russian front, the best the Hitler command could report today was that German troops "in defensive fighting" had defeated "strong enemy forces in counter-attacks," cutting off a Russian group that had penetrated the northern—probably Leningrad—sector of the front, and that the Russians lost 56 tanks in the week ending March 12.

But Red army troops were declared in Moscow today to be "breaking the resistance of the German Fascists."

The Soviet information bureau said "the enemy is sustaining heavy losses"; that several more communities were recaptured in continued advances yesterday.

More than 1,400 Germans were reported slain on Leningrad and Kalinin fronts.

Nazis Forced To Use More Reserves

LONDON—(AP)—Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's terrific southern front onslaught with perhaps 90 Red army divisions was reported today to have beaten the Germans to the punch in a pre-spring offensive for control of the Donets basin and the road to the Caucasus.

From Stockholm came word that the Germans had been forced to dip anew into reserves trained for their own spring push and still were unable to stem the new power drive by the Soviet forces estimated at 1,250,000 to 1,500,000 strong.

The Germans in their communique acknowledged their troops were on the defensive in the Donets basin, counter-attacking against "strong enemy forces."

As Latin Pupils Staged Roman Banquet

Garbed in the colorful tunics and togas of the Roman Republic, nearly 100 Latin pupils of Johnny Appleseed and John Simpson Junior High schools "wined" on grape juice, dined on beef and carrots, brown bread and honey, and substituted fingers for forks, at a dinner last night showing how their Roman ancetors lived hundreds of years ago. The costumes worn at the affair held in Johnny Appleseed cafeteria ranged from the purple and scarlet silks of the lords and ladies to the humble burlap of the slaves, while the entertainment had all the flavor of gladiatorial Rome enhanced by such modern tunes as "There's a Tavern in the Town," sung to Latin lyrics. Johnny Appleseed classes acted as hosts at the affair, under the direction of Miss Anita Strauch, Latin instructor. John Simpson classes presented the program. Fred Werner and Miss Helen Pecht, Johnny Appleseed pupils, presided as host and hostess. In the top picture a group of guests are shown circled around Thomas Sherrer, a Roman lord. Others from left to right are: May Meihack, Robert Heitzelman, Donald Johnson, Martha Purdy, Shirley Bauer, Dorothy Bierly, Bettie Gibson and Jean Platt. UNCOVERS FLAW IN TRAFFIC CODE by proving that the city had no ordinance covering the offense.

John W. Norris, Mansfield R. D. 2, had been arrested and was charged with unsafe operation. When his case came up in court yesterday, O'Donnell told Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch that city police did not have the power under the city laws to charge Norris.

City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner disagreed but an examination of the city's ordinance books showed that the clause concerning reckless and careless operation had inadvertently been left out of the traffic code.

Convinced that no such charge existed, Wagner asked Judge Kalbfleisch to dismiss Norris' case and he was released.

Norris, a driver for a soft drink firm, was arrested after he had pulled up to the wrong side of the street to make a delivery and then, according to police, drawn his truck out in front of another motorist.

Norris' offense is covered by the state law but not by the city ordinances. He cannot be prosecuted twice for the same violation, however, according to Wagner.

The solicitor said he expects to have council take quick action on the matter to give police the power to arrest drivers for several violations which are grouped under the careless and reckless or unsafe operation term.

Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals said that he had started an index of all traffic ordinances existing so that situations such as in the Norris case can be eliminated.

Boals said that the ordinances had been listed but that it would take many months before any standard traffic code can be made out.

At various intervals, council attempts to consolidate all existing ordinances into one but it is believed that the careless and reckless clause was omitted last fall when the most recent traffic ordinance was passed.

ILLNESS FATAL

Mrs. Grace Estella Cowell, 56, wife of Clyde E. Cowell, 644 Bowman street, died at General hospital this morning after an illness of several months.

She was born near Loudonville, July 18, 1885, and was the daughter of the late Reuben and Elizabeth Hunter, pioneer Ashland county residents. She was a member of the Loudonville Methodist church and of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Delano lodge in Mansfield.

Survivors, besides her husband, are a son, Glenn, Mansfield; one daughter, Mrs. Clark Schaffer, of Ashland; and two half sisters, Mrs. Ruth Bell and Mrs. Walter Bell, both of Loudonville.

The body was removed to Jones Memorial where funeral services will be conducted Sunday at 3 p. m. by Rev. Lena Jennings, pastor of the Perrysville Presbyterian church. Burial will be in Greenlawn cemetery, Perrysville.

LETTERS FAVOR U. S. SALES TAX

People Back Home Tell Their Congressmen It's Better Than Levy Boost.

While it is not contended that the plight of the legislator himself will influence his vote to any great extent, some believe that other things being equal, it might be taken into consideration.

While the treasury has stoutly opposed a sales tax in its new $7,610,000,000 revenue bill, many witnesses who have appeared before the tax-writing house ways and means committee have gone on record in favor of this type of levy.

J. Cheever Cowdin, speaking for the National Association of Manufacturers, urged either a straight eight per cent tax on retail sales or a combined four per cent manufacturers levy, plus a four per cent retail levy, either one to raise more than $4,000,000,000.

county will have a total of 3,600 men in the service then.

Sixty percent of the registrants slated to start shouldering arms by next October will come from the old lists of registrants—that is, those who registered in October, 1940, and in July last year, according to information from selective service headquarters in Washington.

The three Richland county boards still have several hundred 1-B men to induct, but after they are in the army the bulk of the men then must come from the 3-A group of men deferred because of dependents.

Draft officials said the men who registered in February probably won't be called before July 1 unless an emergency develops.

Meanwhile, the county's new group of registrants will receive order numbers in the national lottery next Tuesday night. The numbers drawn then will determine the order in which the registrants will receive their questionnaires and will be called for physical examinations.

Under the new induction plan which goes into effect Saturday, inductees must be prepared to leave for the army when they receive their call for a second physical examination at the Fort Hayes induction station in Columbus.

There will be "screening" examinations at the Mansfield Armory to weed out the men obviously unfit for army duty and then induction orders will be issued to men who are approved by doctors here.

Major Victor C. Reese, district selectve service examiner, who was in Mansfield yesterday, said it may be advisable for inductees who have a small farm or business to dispose of to ask for a brief stay of induction to permit them to settle their business matters at home.

"In the case of men employed in offices, industry, or school work, it would be well to ask for a leave-of-absence after receiving their induction order which would permit them to return to their jobs in the event they fail to pass the final physical test at the induction center," Major Reese said.

"The inductee also could grant a relative the power of attorney to sell his property or otherwise clear up his business at home after he receives his order to report," he continued.

The new plan which eliminates the waiting period between the final physical examination and induction saves a trip to Columbus and speeds up the induction of men, it was pointed out. Registrants who deside to appeal their cases must do so after they pass the "screening" test in Mansfield when the new system goes into effect Saturday.

ordinance which unquestionably is unconstitutional."

Attorney Hanning and John B. Coleman, Mansfield division sales manager of the Standard Oil company, conferred briefly with Mayor Locke yesterday. Hanning said they were unable to learn what the mayor plans to do with the ordinance.

R. S. Daugherty and Attorney Ross K. Shoolroy, Wooster, representing the Fair Price company, discussed the ordinance yesterday with Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston. Attoreny Shoolroy said he considered the ordinance "unfair and unconstitutional" and would file suit for an injunction just as soon as it goes into effect.

Police would be charged with enforcement of the curfew law. Under the council plan, certain stations would be permitted to remain open each month. A motorist would have to obtain a permit from police to buy gasoline at the open stations after 7 p. m.

CHAPTER XXVI

"I'd love to do that, Judith, but—well, I haven't much time here. My train leaves at 8:30. Another time. But won't you come into town?"

"Very well."

They made arrangements for meeting at a certain restaurant and she went upstairs to change from the tailored business clothes to a green afternoon frock and one of those absurd little black hats with a veil she wore so well.

Ames looked the same, a tall, dark-haired, fine looking young man with whom any girl would be proud to be seen.

He took her white gloved hand and held it and looked approvingly at the slim, black Persian lamb coat she was wearing. "You're looking very well, Judith. Clinton agrees with you."

They went inside and after they ordered cocktails, she asked. "How is Phyllis? I suppose this is a business trip on which wives are supposed to have a demoralizing influence." But she knew instantly by the cloud that passed over his face that Ames wasn't the same.

He smiled wryly. Then, frowning, he said. "Frankly, Judith, I don't know how Phyllis is. I haven't seen her since October. We've been separated since then."

Judith was scarcely aware that the cocktails were being placed before them or that she had taken a cigaret and Ames was holding a match to it. Separated since October!

"I didn't know, Ames. I haven't heard from her since last summer."

"I'm on the road for a bit. Dad thought it would be a good idea for me to get out of New York for a few months. I've been west and I'm working on toward New York again." He smiled; it was the same Ames. "Don't go feeling sorry for me, Judith, because I'm not the least bit sorry for myself. You see, I'm not in the least in love with her anymore."

"I don't know what to say. It's a shock."

"Is it? Didn't you see? Of course you did. You being you would see that from the start she didn't even try to be a wife."

"I saw things that I thought weren't quite right but I'd hoped."

"So did I. But I soon learned that it was never going to get better, but worse. I married Phyllis because I loved her and I thought we'd made a home together and have a family and live a normal life. There wasn't anything I wouldn't have done for her or given her. But the giving has to be mutual.

"Phyllis didn't marry me because I was the man she loved. She married me because she was sick of supporting herself and I was the most likely prospect she knew . . . Oh, I suppose she cared for me as much as she is capable of caring for any man. But the person you marry should be someone you love more than you love yourself. But Phyllis loves herself first . . . Marriage isn't easy, I know. My mother used to say that any girl who married to get out of work was going to wake up and realize she'd made a big mistake, that marriage was the biggest job of all."

Judith said thoughtfully, "Then marriage is a job from which you can be fired as you can be fired from any other job."

"I suppose that's what I did. I fired Phyllis. But not until after a fair trial and several chances to start over again. I fired her because she was too lazy to keep my home clean and to cook my food and because she had no idea of the value of money and because she said she would never have any children. I stopped loving her. She became distasteful to me. Maybe some men can put up with that sort of thing, but I—I couldn't! I took it as long as I could. I was married but I was ashamed to ask people to come to see me. I had a wife who was pretty—and useless.

"Maybe my training has been all wrong, Judith. My mother managed to be pretty and useful, too. When I checked Phyllis' department store bills, they were nearly a thousand dollars—one-fifth of my yearly income. I confronted her with these bills—well, it was a pretty sad spectacle. Phyllis turned our marriage into a racket."

"But in fair trials, Ames—"

"She'd do better for a week, but the next week we'd be eating in restaurants again." He smiled bitterly. "I am an extremely well-dressed young man. You see, Phyllis always forgot to send the laundry out so when I needed clean clothes I had to go out and buy new things."

"But what did Phyllis say?"

"She lost her temper the last time. She isn't red-headed for nothing. Then she cried and begged me not to leave. She said she'd do anything." He shook his head slowly. "It was so—so sordid, that last scene. I—I couldn't look at her with anything but contempt and distaste. I couldn't stay. I couldn't stay married to that sort of girl.

"I went to my father. He asked me to try it again, but I knew it wasn't any use. I knew she couldn't change her nature. I haven't seen her since that night, but I've been sending her money every month and she still has the apartment. She stopped telephoning me and begging me to come back.

"My father went to see her—he was very fond of her at first even though she always treated him as if he weren't there—and he wrote me that she has a job in one of the department stores. With what she makes and with what I send her she can live extremely well. I'm going to get a legal separation as soon as I get to New York . . . Maybe you think I should try again. But I don't love her, Judith, and I'd rather be dead than tied to a girl who won't co-operate with me in any way and who won't have any children. She was very emphatic about the latter. Do you blame me?"

"I can't say I do, though I hate to judge. But, Ames, suppose you wake up some morning and find, after this first disillusionment is over, that you still love her? Love can take a great deal of punishment. It sometimes comes back at the last count."

"It can wear out," he said somberly. "There isn't any other girl—if, by any chance, you are thinking that. I've been working hard and trying to feel that Phyllis and I were a mistake. A strong attraction isn't enough to make a successful marriage. I don't intend to be bitter or disillusioned. My pride has taken a beating because there's never been a divorce in my family. If only she had tried a little."

"And what will happen to her?"

"With what I give her and she's so money-conscious I know she'll demand money and with what she earns, she'll be far better off than if she hadn't married me. She's made new friends, people I didn't approve of but put up with for her sake and because they seemed to amuse her. They brought out a common streak in her I didn't know existed. Emily and Tim tried to be friendly and I like both of them, but Phyllis said they bored her. They live very simply in the country and theirs is the kind of marriage I thought mine would be . . . I wanted you to know, Judith. Perhaps this isn't the way a man should speak of his wife. I haven't been as brutally honest with anyone except my father. That's why I turned down the invitation to meet your parents and asked you to come into town. You know, Phyllis could never understand why you gave up your good job in New York and came home. I can. I think you were right."

They talked until he said with regret that it was almost time for his train to leave. But he did not mention Phyllis again. Judith felt empty, remembering stained glass windows in a church on a certain day in October a few hours before she met Max and her thoughts then of the beauty of the mingling of two lives. They had been so certain then. But for Ames she had no fears now. The essence of his nature was fineness. But for Phyllis her fears mounted as sordid mental pictures formed in her mind.

In the station Ames said a cheerful good-bye and promised to call her again if he were ever in Clinton. He reminded her of a man who is happily relieved at the selling of a bad investment

At Christmas there was a gift and a long letter from Emily. There was nothing from Phyllis. In March Emily's son was born.

In June Judith danced at the country club with Stephen who had just become a member and was as proud as a little boy who bought his first bicycle with the accumulation of penny savings.

Wearing a white dancing frock spattered with red flowers, she danced with him in the clubhouse ballroom, her mouth curving into that proud and tender smile. Color crept up his lean, tanned cheeks because bewhiskered old Mr. West, Clinton's most important banker, had nodded in recognition.

"That's Mr. West, Judith."

"Yes, I know."

"Dignified, isn't he?"

"Very."

"He's 70 and still plays golf."

She looked up and smiled. "If you think about golf, you'll be wanting to take me home so that you can shine your golf sticks for tomorrow's big match."

He chuckled. "That's not fair. Besides, you said you were going to play golf with me."

"I'm not a tycoon like you. I have to work on Saturday and on Sunday my beginner's game would hold up the course—and you."

He smiled and said, "You're—you're the prettiest girl here tonight. Your dress."

"And your orchid in my hair."

"Yours now."

Seeing Katherine and Ralph dance by, his glance sobered. "They're still crazy about each other, aren't they? They dance as if they weren't married. I don't see Harriet and her husband Larry about. Where do we all go from here?"

"Harriet and Larry will go home because they still aren't comfortable about leaving the maid with the children. Her eyes had laughter in them now. "Of course, your being a tycoon and a socialite these days."

"You wouldn't try to kid me, would you, lady?"

So it was with them and so it had been for months. Tonight it amused her that he had noticed her dress because never before had he remarked about anything she wore. It was not that he did not notice. Coming toward him often she had seen complete approval in those candid blue eyes, but it was a silent approval. Less sensitive people would think that much went over young Stephen Larrabee's head, but Judith knew there was little his keen mind did not absorb.

A wave of happiness passed over her, seeming to take with it her longing for Max that still continued to be no less intense than it had been in the beginning. Dancing with Stephen on the first evening that he was a member of the Clinton Country club and wearing a new dress and his orchid in her dark hair, and feeling, for an instant, free of longing she thought, "I don't want it to come back! It's so good not to want Max! And this is good, too, being here, seeing all these faces that I know. I'm having a good time tonight. I feel wonderful."

BOOKS TELL OF CONDITIONS IN THIRD REICH

'People Under Hitler' and 'Land of Silent People,' New at City Library.

The living conditions of people under the dictatorship of the Third Reich, both in Germany and other Nazi-occupied countries, are described in two timely and important books that have been added to the Mansfield Public Library collection.

What is happening to the German people and why they let it happen is set down by Wallace R. Devel, Berlin correspondent for the Chicago Daily News, in "People Under Hitler." Devel lived in Germany for six years and during that time collected, and later escaped with astounding facts that could never have passed a news censorship.

Robert St. John describes his personal experience in the Balkans during the Nazi campaign in "From the Land of the Silent People." As a reporter St. John covered one of the most heroic and most tragic phases of the war. His book depicts the ruthless bombing of Belgrade, the evacuation of Greece by Empire troops and the terror and hardship imposed upon the Balkan people by Stuka dive bombers.

THE PANAMA CANAL by Norman J. Padelford is a timely book which deals comprehensively with the Canal today. It examines the rights and powers of the United States over the Canal and Canal Zone, its place in American life, etc., and is concerned both with the Canal's importance to national and hemisphere defense and with the problem of protecting the Canal.

THE CRISIS OF OUR AGE by P. A. Sorokin is a discerning analysis of today's social and cultural crisis, based on a careful study of history and of the relationship between periods of cultural transition, war, and internal dissension. It is an optimistic book, and reassures us that in spite of all the violence and bewilderment of our time, we are now headed for a better world.

OTHER NON-FICTION: MIRRORS, PRISMS AND LENSES by Southall; RUNNING A MILLING MACHINE by Colvin; INDUSTRIAL INSTRUMENTS FOR MEASUREMENTS AND CONTROLS by Rhodes; MILLING PRACTICE by Mollay; BLUEPRINT READING AND SKETCHING by Thayer; AIRCRAFT NAVIGATION MANUAL; AUTOMATIC ARMS: THEIR HISTORY, DEVELOPMENT AND USE by Johnson & Haven; PLAYS OF AMERICA'S EXPLORERS AND FOUNDERS by Ullman; JAPAN'S DREAM OF WORLD EMPIRE: THE TANAKA MEMORIAL by Crow; STORY OF AMERICAN CATHOLICISM by Maynard.

YOUNG AMES by Walter D. Edmonds is an exciting, romantic, sometimes rollicking novel of young New York in the 1830's, of a freckle-faced, ambitious young man and a gently-bred young woman with pluck as well as beauty. Young Ames has native wit, courage, and a good dash of effrontery—and Christine is by all odds the most attractive heroine the author has ever drawn. An earlier book of Mr. Edmonds is "Drums Along the Mohawk."

THEY TELL NO TALES by Manning Coles, author of "Drink to Yesterday" and "Toast to Tomorrow" is a timely and superior mystery story. Back in England after a long absence, Tommy Hambledon is again employed by the Intelligence department. When several vessels explode shortly after leaving the Portsmouth Naval base, it became apparent that agents of some foreign country were involved—and Tommy is assigned to the case. But the day he took over, it became, too, the case of the murdered man, MacGregor.

THE NEW HOPE by Joseph C. and Freeman Lincoln is the story of a company of Cape Codders who take up the venture of launching a privateer through the British blockade of the War of 1812. It is a lively and sharply seasoned tale of adventure and mystery and character as one might ask for under the "historical novel" head.

OTHER FICTION: THE EMPTY ROOM by Morgan; THE SECRET SON by Kaye-Smith; NORTHWEST LAW by White.

PURCHASES IN COUNTY DECLINE

Household Commodity Sales Cause Sharp Decrease In Revenues Here.

Purchases of virtually every household commodity slumped in Richland county during the last week of February to drop the county's sales tax receipts to $9,738 as compared with $14,421 in the corresponding week last year, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright's weekly report showed today.

The downward trend was reported in most of Ohio's counties, total sales tax receipts dropping $165,226 for the week.

Collections for the first two months of 1942 amounted to $82,678, nearly $7,000 below the 1941 figures.

Richland county today had received $9,288 from the state as its share of the sales tax collections for March and Deputy Auditor Arthur S. Beck said receipts for the first quarter of the year will be allocated to sub-divisions late this month.

The county's share for the first quarter of the year total $27,865, Beck said. The money will go to cities, villages, and townships for operating expenses.

The county auditor's office distributes the funds every quarter, waiting until enough money accumulates to make the allocation worth while.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, MARCH 13, 1942.

While remembering Pearl Harbor it will also be advisable to remember France.

It is now being strongly intimated that the customary manifestations of "spring fever" will be frowned upon for the duration.

They're looking for a better word than "inflation" to apply to a condition in which a lot of money buys very little—as too many people seem to think that it means no more than air in the tires.

Dies Committee To Continue

WORK of the Dies committee is to be continued for at least another year, members of the house decided—by a vote of 331 to 46.

This house committee, which has performed valuable service by unearthing un-American activities prior to United States entry into the war, has been attacked, applauded, ridiculed and commended to such an extent that the public became considerably confused about the whole thing.

But when there was an analysis of the elements that opposed, in contrast with the groups which approved the work of the Dies committee, it became apparent that there has been, and continues to be, real need in this country for the kind of investigatory work the committee has been doing.

Subversive activities by alien enemies and Axis sympathizers in the United States have been too widespread to justify weakening any of the defenses against this internal danger. If possible, the work of the Dies committee should be further extended, as has been done with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which has also been opposed in some quarters.

Gasoline Shortage Not General

THREAT of a gasoline shortage in the east, with rationing in prospect, naturally attracts attention elsewhere in the country, although the cause of shortage in eastern states does not apply in sections not supplied by tanker transportation.

It is a transportation problem, rather than shortage of supply at its source, that is involved, and it appears unlikely there will be any real need for seriously restricting gasoline sales in central or midwestern states in the near future.

In fact, reduced use of private cars, which has already become noticeable, may quickly meet the proposed 25 per cent reduction in gasoline consumption without government action.

Limitation of hours of operation of filling stations appears more designed to bridge over a temporary period of financial and help problems than to establish a permanent schedule of service, and if this policy becomes general motorists will probably soon be accepting it as another of the minor inconveniences of wartime.

Weakness In Anti-Racketeering Law

ONE of the surprising things in this supposedly civilized country is the taxation levied in many large cities, on goods from farms in the surrounding country. Thus when a neighboring farmer wants to bring a pig to the market in New York City, he is stopped at the city limits and obliged to pay $9.42 for the privilege of entering with his pig. This charge, be it observed, is not made by the city authorities. It doesn't go into the city treasury. It goes into the pockets of a labor organization which has erected such invisible toll gates for its own benefit.

The charge is explained as being the daily wage of a union truck driver. When the farmer drives his own truck, the theory is, he is doing the union out of a day's pay. The most remarkable thing about the whole situation is that the United States Supreme Court in a recent majority decision called the procedure legal, with the added statement that the law should be changed at once.

By a six to one vote the Supreme Court held that the federal anti-racketeering law, as it now stands, does not extend to such union "collections," which have been common practice in New York and some other large cities.

Chief Justice Stone, in a dissenting opinion, observed that the majority interpretation, if valid, "would render common law robbery an innocent pastime."

Winant Is Silent Diplomat

JOHN G. WINANT, back from Britain for a talk with the president, isn't saying much. But there isn't anything unusual about that. The marvel would be if he did do any talking—excepting, of course, to his boss in the White House.

From all accounts, he is probably the most tight-lipped diplomat in our history. He is more silent than the famous Colonel House, who gum-shoed about the world for President Wilson in the last war, as uncommunicative as a shadow. Mr. Winant really can talk, and has made some speeches in the course of his public career, when cornered and compelled by circumstances. But even when put on the spot he sometimes manages to escape.

They tell a story in England about his being called on to speak in a public meeting. His British hosts naturally assumed that, being an American, there would be no difficulty about it—his mouth would open and the oratory would flow forth automatically. But to their surprise, the speaker stood there speechless. He simply couldn't get started. The silent agony lasted for four long minutes, then the honored guest found his tongue and made this epochal address:

"My greatest mistake," he said softly, "was in getting up in the first place." Then he sat down. The British are said to like Winant. One reason for that seems obvious

Delving Into Mother Goose

LITTLE JACK HORNER, who sat in a corner, eating his Christmas pie, was a real person who lived under Henry VIII of England, about 400 years ago. That is the discovery made by Katherine E. Thomas, who has been making a study of that old nursery favorite, Mother Goose. The Christmas pie contained, in accordance with the fantastic fashion of the time, a title-deed, done up in ribbon, presented by the king to his good friend Jack Horner.

A lot of other nursery favorites, says Miss Thomas, go back to the same time. Little Boy Blue was a satire on Cardinal Wolsey, Henry VIII's unlucky prime minister, and Little Bo-peep was no other than that tragic victim, Mary Queen of Scots.

City Jobs Taking Farm Workers

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

URBAN INDUSTRY, not selective service, should be blamed by farmers for drafting so much agricultural labor that they can't plant, cultivate and harvest crops enough to feed the country adequately, according to Brig. Gen. Louis B. Hershey, the service's head.

The general manifestly is getting tired of being accused of overdoing conscription, but he doesn't propose to let anyone uncontradictedly profess the ability to influence him to underdo it, either. Accordingly, he's co-operating with J. Edgar Hoover's Federal Bureau of Investigation at the task of running down an anonymous outfit which does make the claim that it can.

Suppose a farm hand is exempted by his draft board. Does he continue working on a farm? Not a bit of it, it appears. Some factory in his nearest city offers him so much higher wages than agriculture pays him that he quits his rural job and moves into town.

Maybe his new stunt is an indispensability, too, so that he's still militarily exempted, but that does not help the farm employer he has just left. That the latter is in a bad fix isn't disputed, but it's not selective service's fault. The downtown industry that hired the farmer's erstwhile assistant is responsible for it.

WHAT the farmers really need is a selective service of their own—a system of drafting chaps to till their acres.

It probably would be unpopular, though—making the selectees toil on the land, with higher pay clamoring for them in the cities everywhere.

Anyway, General Hershey's bureau is tired of being panned for a situation it isn't guilty of and can't remedy.

It can and does tell its side, nevertheless.

The birds who represent themselves as able to obtain exemptions haven't been conclusively identified at this moment of writing. They don't sign their names to their publicity literature, but they broadcast considerable of it, and some of it has fallen into the government's hands.

They call themselves an organization of some sort, and say they're in touch with powerful folk in Washington, who'll do their fixing for them—at a price, of course.

NATURALLY those named haven't been disclosed by the investigators yet, partly because it may be the alleged organization is lying about them, and partly because disclosure would be premature now, anyway.

If the scheme's a fake, at best it's a shot at obtaining by false pretenses from anyone who falls for it. If it's a genuine article, it involves a conspiracy to nullify the selective service act for subscribers to it, a severely punishable criminal offense.

Catching the would-be violators is the business of Attorney General Biddle's justice department, through Chief Hoover's investigation bureau; not of the selective service outfit, which is concerned with administration, not enforcement of law. It obviously is of lively interest to General Hershey, though, and he's lending all the aid he can to Hoover in digging into the matter.

Health Questions Answered Here.

—By DR. CLENDENING

M. S.: "If one is X-rayed and fluoroscoped and the appendix is not seen or does not fill with barium, does this indicate that there is trouble in this region or that there is no trouble there?"

Answer: In my opinion the X-ray has no value whatever in the diagnosis of any kind of appendicitis. It was only by accident that a French doctor once saw the appendix visualized by the X-ray. I think it was a great tragedy that he did see it, because it has led to condemning many normal appendices, and to useless surgery.

G. M. S.: "Is there any harm in taking thyroid gland tablets without the constant care of a physician? I am seventeen and take them just for fun.

Answer: There certainly is a great deal of harm in taking thyroid extract without the constant care of a physician. I do not know what "fun" you get out of it, but if I were you, I would stop it.

H. D. Y.: "I have a formula for constipation that reads as follows: 1oz. powdered slippery elm bark; 2 oz. powdered charcoal; 2 oz. powdered senna leaf; 2 oz. olive oil; 2 oz. glycerine; 1 lb. raisins; 1 lb. white figs. This is to be made up in balls the size of a walnut, and taken on retiring."

Answer: This undoubtedly will work if you want to take the time and trouble, but you are living in the dark ages. Get some fluid extract of Cascara Sagrada and you will have more time to enjoy the sunshine.

Timely Editorial

Worth Pondering.

Comes March 15, and we'd all better have smiles on our mugs if by comparisons only. The British Press service has just released a few facts on income taxes in England. Selected tidbits: British wage earners who have to pay an income tax start in at a weekly wage minimum of $8.40. Great Britain is now spending 52 million dollars daily of which about five-sixths is for actual war expenditure. Thus about 18 cents out of every 20 cents paid in for taxes goes for prosecution of the war.

The government has issued a little booklet titled, "Income Tax Quiz for Wage Earners." The supply of 500,000 copies (at 40 cents each) was exhausted in twenty-four hours. The British are now being urged to budget their incomes on a weekly basis to save against tax deductions, which certainly isn't a bad idea.—Minneapolis Star-Journal.

Big Firms Say They're Harassed, Want Anti-Trust Actions Stopped

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—It hasn't leaked out yet, but Secretary of War Stimson has sent a letter to Attorney General Biddle virtually requesting that the justice department refrain from further prosecution of anti-trust suits until the end of the war.

Secretary Stimson's letter is couched in very general and polite language. But its effect comes close to a demand that the Sherman anti-trust act be put on the shelf until the end of hostilities.

Behind this is the fact that various big companies have been complaining to the war department that they cannot push their war contracts if they are constantly harassed by the justice department bringing them before grand juries.

The justice department has prosecutions under way against the Aluminum Company of America, Standard Oil of New Jersey, and Bosch and Lomb on charges of conspiring with German firms to restrict such vital war products as magnesium, optical instruments, and synthetic rubber.

Standard Oil officials have been weeping on war department shoulders that they suffer such mental anguish over these prosecutions that they cannot concentrate on war jobs for the government.

However, the justice department for a long time has contended that if it had not been for these monopolies, the United States would not today be short of such vital war products as synthetic rubber, magnesium and aluminum. Furthermore, it is not generally known that virtually all of the German chemical patents which the United States seized during the last war, got right back into German hands (through conspiracy with American firms) after the war was over.

So the justice department claims that this monopolistic practice must be stopped now—and for all time.

Furthermore the justice department claims that these big companies, with the best legal brains money can buy on their annual payrolls, can defend these suits without interfering with war contracts.

What the outcome will be probably depends on the White House. And what the White House finally decides will guide the future of big or little business in this country for years to come.

Note: Ex-Premier Daladier of France says: "French industrialists sabotaged our war production until it was too late."

Aluminum Bottleneck.

SECRETARY ICKES' Bureau of Mines has been making some very significant studies of the aluminum situation which show that although we are building new aluminum plants all over the country to break Alcoa's monopoly, we are not breaking the monopoly on aluminum ore—which comes from Dutch Guiana.

In other words, these new plants, with one possible exception, are all dependent on high grade ore which has to be imported from a foreign country, instead of taking advantage of the millions of tons of low grade aluminum clay right here in the United States.

And with submarine attacks increasing in the Caribbean, we may find ourselves faced with another aluminum shortage—chiefly because in setting up new aluminum plants, we followed the monopoly ideas of the Aluminum Corporation of America.

Here the inside facts in this highly important situation.

The Aluminum corporation for many years has imported its ore from Dutch Guiana, unloaded it at New Orleans, where it was cracked, then shipped it to its separate plants at Messina, N. Y., Alcoa, Tenn., St. Louis and Oregon. At these plants it was made into alumina. Then it was shipped all the way across the United States to Pittsburgh to be rolled, then all over the U. S. A., again in finished form to the airplane factories—many of them on the west coast.

Thus transportation alone obviously has been an important reason aluminum sells for 19c a pound.

Andy Mellon Intervened.

ALCOA for many years has smelted its ore with caustic soda, according to the Bayer process. This requires high grade ore, and that's why its ore has been imported all the way from Dutch Guiana.

However, Germany, France and Russia use a lime soda process, and therefore have been able to use the low grade ores which abound in their countries—and also in the United States.

Alcoa, however, never has been willing to adopt this lime soda process. In fact Alcoa has gone to strange and unusual lengths to prevent the use of the lime soda process by other American firms.

For instance, the Detroit Edison company in 1929 started making aluminum merely from the smoke and ash which went up its chimneys—and by using the lime soda process. The work was carried out under the well-known scientist Dr. Robert James, and Bureau of Mines officials pronounced it highly successful.

But suddenly the Detroit Edison company stopped.

At the time no one knew why. The only explanation given by Dr. James to his friends was: "Mr. Mellon didn't want us to."

However, it is now authoritatively reported that at that time the Detroit Edison company desired to do some refinancing, and found it would have to pay about 6 per cent for its money. But when it dropped its lime soda smelting of aluminum, Detroit Edison suddenly was able to refinance for a much lower interest rate.

Potent Friends.

AT THAT TIME, of course, Mr. Mellon and the Aluminum corporation were among the most powerful influences in the U.S.A.

But today, even under Roosevelt, the Aluminum corporation seems to be all-powerful, at least when it comes to preventing use of the lime-soda process for low grade American ores.

A company which has the very successful lime soda French patents has been dinning at the doors of the War Production board for more than a year trying to get authority to set up a plant which would not be dependent upon Dutch Guiana, but would use the ore of Tennessee or Washington. But all it has got is the run-around.

Its executives have gone from Bill Batt to Sidney Hillman to Z. Jeffries, to Arthur Bunker, the Lehman Brothers executive loaned to the WPB. But they always seemed to hit the stone wall set up by Professor Grenville Holden, now with the OPA, good friend of the Aluminum corporation, who quite frankly says:

"If you want a hat you go to a hat store. And if you want aluminum you go to Alcoa."

Meanwhile, it is estimated that using American ores right on the spot and saving the long hauls from New Orleans to Oregon to Pittsburgh, to the airplane factories, would reduce the price of aluminum from 19 cents to 8 cents a pound.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—People who visit the Hawaiian Room at the Lexington hotel soon become aware of a lovely young girl in a long sweeping gown moving silently among the guests placing leis about their necks.

This is Kahala. She is seventeen. It is the first long dress she has ever owned. If she seems shy, it is because she is still unused to the clamor of the great cities on the Mainland. Less than a year ago she was in Manoa Valley, which is not far from Honolulu, where the red hibiscus and the white ginger blossoms grow.

Sometimes she used to stare out across the water and wonder what lay on the other side. At such moments she thought of her father, whom she hadn't seen in nearly 14 years. Her father is Al McIntire, who plays bass fiddle in Lani McIntire's orchestra. Lani is famous as a purveyor of Hawaiian music, as a composer and as a singer. Al and Lani are brothers. Al and Lani are half Hawaiian and half Irish, but Kahala, Al's daughter, is half Chinese, one quarter Irish and one quarter Hawaiian.

ONE langorous August day the S. S. Matsonia was sailing from Honolulu. Kahala wandered down to the dock to see the sailing. She was barefooted. She had on a simple little dress and she had $3 in her pocketbook.

She thought, "These ships come and go with the regularity of the moon and the tide, but I have to stay. I have a father somewhere in the States. I wonder what he's like."

Suddenly the band began to play, and people began to toss their leis into the sea in observance of the lovely legend that if you toss your flowers into the sunset you will surely return some day.

Somehow, before she knew what was happening, Kahala was on board the Matsonia. She sat down in a deck chair, clutching her $3, sketching little imaginary figures into the deck with her bare toes.

A ship's officer came up, asked to see her ticket. When she told him, "I haven't any," he said, "Come with me," and he took her to the captain.

But the captain knew Lani McIntire, as who does not know Lani McIntire along the waterfronts of the Pacific and on the Islands. So they put Kahala in a first class cabin, and wired ahead to Lani's other brother, Dick, who owns musical academies up and down the west coast.

IT WAS Uncle Dick who met her, and shipped her east to her father, Al, and to her uncle, Lani.

As Lani explained it to me, "Al, he didn't play so good that night. He was too excited. I don't see how he played at all."

But he plays good now. He slaps that bull fiddle while Lani sings To You Sweetheart Aloha and We're Dancing Under the Stars.

And as he sings, a lovely shy girl in a long flowing dress moves quietly among the guests and places leis about their necks.

A Farmer's Diary

Little March Hares

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

GOING up the hill at near sundown, I scared up a rabbit. It bounced, zigzag, along the slope and disappeared around a log. I followed, slowly, to see what I could see.

The end of the log was half buried in a great tuft of withered grass that had a swirled look. No opening was visible, but I suspected it was more than a mere tuft of grass and went to the southern side. There, shielded from the weather, as by a roof, I found, beneath the log, an entrance, rimmed with bits of rabbit's fur, and I thought I knew what would be within.

I got down on my hands and knees and peered. Four tiny, half naked, blind baby cottontails were there—so young and unclad and helpless that I found it hard to believe that in a few weeks they would be fully furred, wide awake, young Easter bunnies as long as a man's hand. They squirmed and shivered and crawled over one another, for I had pulled away a little of the furry nest to see them better. So, hastily, I replaced their covering and walked on a little way. I stood quite still for ten minutes or so, wondering where the mother was, watching for her to appear.

Presently, hopping slowly from the opposite direction, Mother Bunny came. She stopped to chew a twig or two from a young wild grape, stood upright on her strong hind legs and gave a quick look all around before she dropped on all fours and without waste motion, crept through the door of her house. She thought she had led me astray. I smiled as I fancied I heard subdued nuzzling squeaks of welcome.

By the time the grass grows green and the warm sun shines every day, those little fellows will be large enough to creep outside and nibble grass blades, clover tops and bits of tender bark. Their prolific mother will most likely bring up two more families before the summer is over. But the later ones will not be full grown in time for hunting season. Those born in summer will lack the size, the energy and the speed that make sport for hunters from the cottontail's zigzag rush. The rigors of March produce something that is lacking in a softer climate. It seems that fighting for survival and fitness go together.

Envoy Declares India Ready to Fight, But Needs Arms

WEAPONS, NOT INDEPENDENCE, ARE CONCERN

Representative Declares That Thousands Volunteer, Hate Nazis and Japs.

(By Wide World)

WASHINGTON—India's envoy to the United States, short of leg but long of brain, wants more weapons for India's waiting manpower and less concern for her independence.

Five-foot Sir Girja Bajpai (pronounced Gur-Jah Badge-Pie) says his country will get independence whenever her own people can agree on a constitution but that presently she cannot get enough for "tens of thousands" of volunteers.

Sir Girja has a message for America—"India hates the German and Jap and is in this war to stay!" She has increased her armed forces from 170,000 to 1,000,000, and could muster 8,000,000 if she had weapons for them.

Tens of thousands from all classes, shouting "Sat Shiri Akal" (truth is eternal) ask every week to join, he says, but must be refused for lack of fighting gear.

He ardently advocates Indian national independence, whenever there no longer is danger of civil war between the 80,000,000 moslems and 200,000,000 Hindus perennially at each other's throat for control of government.

Britain is ready whenever India is ready for dominion status, he says, but right now both are trying to win a war against a common foe.

Sir Girja, who has a classical English, French and Persian education to round out his native culture, now is serving his biggest job to date—India's first diplomatic representative to this country. Previously, he had represented India all over the world. He came to the Washington arms limitation conference in 1921-22.

The Japanese thrust north in Burma emphasizes the strategic importance of India as one of the eight leading industrial countries of the world. She makes 1,000,000 tons of finished steel a year, small arms, and she feeds and clothes the democracies on the far eastern front.

Sir Girja is a Brahmin Hindu, one of the four higher castes of India's complex racial and religious structure. He privately observes his duties to deity but not always can he be orthodox in public. As a member of the Indian civil service, he must mingle with persons not of his own race, belief and caste.

Bajpai is as cosmopolitan as he is oriental. His office used to be a private garage.

He is an Oxford graduate and dresses tastefully after the fashion of the western world. His three sons do too, but his wife and four daughters still wear the gorgeous Sari of mother India. Their servants here are American, and the whole family reads American newspapers and comics and tunes in on popular radio programs.

The children range in age from a boy, 14, to a girl, 26. The boys are to be as world-wise as their father, but Girja says his daughters "are educated but not too emancipated."

The agent general is 51. Short, slender, round-faced, cleanshaven, soft-voiced and has large, comtemplative eyes. A scholarly forehead, square jaw, near-Grecian nose, flashing teeth and lips poised for polite irony or sly humor.

All through school he won the scholastic and oratorical prizes of the year and he is rated as the finest debater in the central Indian legislative assembly.

Sir Girja probably is the only big-shot in British-Indian official life who takes no part in sports. He says complacently that he would rather spend the time with his family and roses, a unique collection of world varieties which constitutes one of India's prize flower gardens.

He probably knows more of U. S. history, the constitution and American affairs and public opinion than the average well-read American. His first act on leaving India was to purchase and study an enviable avalanche of Americana.

Dutch Heads In Australia After Flight

After a hazardous flight from the Dutch East Indies during the height of the Japanese assault upon Java, Hubertus Van Mook (center), Lt. Gov. of the Islands and Maj. Gen. L. H. Van Oyen (right), chief of the Indies air force, are greeted by Air Marshal Sir Charles Durnett, commander of the Royal Australian Air Force, as they arrive in Melbourne. U. S. AIRPORTS MUSHROOM IN PANAMA AREA

Network of Airfields Grows For Defense of Vital Canal Zone.

By CHANDLER RIEHL

QUARRY HEIGHTS, Panama Canal Zone (WW)—The Caribbean air force, growing as fast as the jungle under the tropical warmth of Panama, has mushroomed into an arm of defense in protection of the Panama Canal Zone.

Growth has been noteworthy throughout the past year, but the expansion of the last two months is striking.

Correspondents visited a series of the airfields dotting Panama's jungles and lowlands last January and noted much expansion and development. A visit today disclosed amazing growth.

Eight weeks ago some of these fields were little more than runways with a string of tents nearby and a half-dozen planes on hand for patrol duty over Panamanian waters.

Today these fields are modern encampments employing all the lessons of war in camouflage and concealment. They house latest type fighting planes and young pilots awaiting their chance to test their gunsights and trigger-fingers on an enemy.

The visit also disclosed new air bases a-budding where eight weeks ago there was only Panamarian sagebush and jungles. And these bases already have their quotas of fast pursuits taking their regular turns at Ocean patrols.

It all adds up a vast network of interceptor dispersing fields—each harboring a group of Uncle Sam's air fighters.

It adds up further to a network of fields well scattered and concealed to provide protection against enemy raiders.

This network has sprung up in recent months over the length and breadth of Panama, because Panama too is now at war at the side of the United States and is able to permit foreign (United States) troops to take over domestic bases in the furtherance of joint defense of the Canal.

A bullet case can be made by a lipstick case company but the bullet case has to be more carefully put together.

NEW RECRUITS

Navy To Receive Applicants In Another Class.

Applications for enlistment in a new class of the Naval reserve designated as construction regiment are being accepted at the U. S. Navy recruiting office in the postoffice, it was announced today by W. G. Cox, recruiting officer.

Recruiters have been authorized to waive defective color preception and loss of teeth, replaced by satisfactory dentures of applicants.

Men between the ages of 17 and 50, although registered for selective service are eligible for enlistment in all construction trades.

Skilled workers applying for enlistment will be sent to Cleveland March 22 and 23 for an interview with a civil engineering officer who will pass on their applications.

Fishermen might try their luck at Trout, Louisiana, or Trout, West Virginia.

..TIME is Everything

"HE who gains time gains everything." Today, with our nation at war, these words of Disraeli bristle with meaning for 130,000,000 Americans.

Victory demands speed. And that means speed in transporting as well as speed in producing vital materials and supplies.

Guns, tanks, planes, supplies, and even troops themselves are only as valuable as their location. They become priceless when they are at the front. Speedy and reliable transportation adds to the value of everything transported. Erie is doing its part.

THE ERIE RAILROAD IS A LOCAL INDUSTRY

BORING THE CYLINDERS FOR MORE POWER

Often, when a car slows down, boring the cylinders aids restoration of pep. The human mechanism is much more complex and often receives less consideration than we give our cars. Mr. Ralph J. Ford, 260 Lincoln Way, Massillon, O., says: "Since taking World's Tonic I have had a feeling of returning pep and energy. Somewhat like the new feeling your car has when the cylinders are bored smooth and even. Constipation doesn't have such a feeling of dread for me since I am taking this fine medicine." Lazy liver and kidneys and sluggish bowels often need tonic and laxative aid. The famous World's Tonic offer both. Also its makers reach into many of the old countries for roots, barks, and herbs, seeking for you the health and strength of your foreign born ancestors. Get World's Tonic at Miller, Wm. T. Hursh, Weinberger, and all other modern Drug Stores. (J-6).

REDISCOVER YOUR HOME...

YOU'LL BE SPENDING MORE TIME THERE NOW

You may never have realized what a habit it became to pile the family into the car and "go somewhere" whenever you had a free hour. Not that you haven't always loved your home, but just because it was fun to consider your car a sort of magic carpet, ready to effortlessly whisk you anywhere.

Things are different now though—you and every other car owner are going to think twice before using that automobile! Tires and gasoline are too precious to squander for just a spin on a spring evening. And because you can't get a new car at all . . . because replacements and repairs are made costly by the fact that all available materials must be speeded into ships and tanks, guns and planes for our fighting forces—you'll be learning to really live in your home! You're going to REDISCOVER the many kinds of joy it has to offer. And you're going to love it.

There's the joy of a quiet evening—mother, dad, and the children. Comfortable chairs to relax in; a sweetly tuned Philco radio, beautiful strains of patriotic music from your Steinway or Baldwin & Lester piano to listen to; lush carpets, a joy to the eye and to the feet. Colorful pictures, and mirrors reflecting a happy family . . .

There are gay evenings to look forward to too, when family and friends drop in, and when you open your doors to welcome that boy on leave! Then you'll see your home through your visitors' eves and be proud of the good taste with which it's furnished from Jones'; secure in the knowledge that because you bought the best you could afford, your pride will not be short lived—but will renew itself through the years, every time you look about each lovely room.

This long range worth of buying the best is something to remember, whether you're a new bride furnishing your first home—or a bride of many years, refurnishing a home that will be a worthy background for a family fast growing up. Depend on the W. E. Jones Piano and Furniture House for your every need. Our store is well stocked with the kind of furniture that will make it a joy for you to REDISCOVER your HOME - - for happy living!

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I knew, of course, what the man in front mean by a "tank that was a twin for ours," which had just passed us, and which, I knew by his tone, was worrying him. He meant that it was an armored car similar to our own.

This information was enough to make me sit upright. The low, cautious voices told me the men thought I was asleep, so I knew I should gain more information by lying still and feigning sleep than if I should begin to ask questions. Their instructions were evidently to get me safely to my destination, and not to cause me any alarm en route. They were the ones who must be ready to meet any trouble head on.

"Sure, I saw it," came the muted voice of Gus, almost a whisper, and the third man also muttered an assent, saying "The lad sitting beside the driver turned his head and gave us the once-over, too. He'll know us again when he sees us."

Possibly an Enemy.

"If he doesn't know us, already," the driver said. The second man's voice, a bit pugnacious, cut into the colloquy.

"What d'ye mean by that?" he said. "Nobody's supposed to know what's behind this car. It's anybody's guess. It looks like a gangsters' outfit."

"Sure thing," the driver admitted, "and I'm not saying they do know anything about us. But they've got some pretty brainy lads on the other side now. It's different than it used to be, and somebody may have caught on to something sometime.

"What gets me is why should they pass us up here in Connecticut? It would have been different if we'd seen 'em near the city. But up here it's queer, so say the least. D'ye suppose they have any idea of where we're going?"

Gus on Guard.

"I don't know," Gus said, "but one thing is sure; we ain't going the same way. They're out of sight now, around those curves, and they were going like bats out of hell when they passed us. It's my bet that if they're headed where we are, they want to get there first."

I had the sensation of having swallowed a huge lump of ice which was freezing the lining of my chest. Had the gangsters hunting Jack Bickett discovered the existence of Professor Walter Scott Diswell? Were they on their way to his home? And what would befall the helpless old man, alone able to tell the meaning of the cuneiform characters traced by Jack, when they should find him?

Madge Makes No Sign.

But I knew better than to make any sign that I had heard anything they had said. Gus was under instructions from my father to take care of me. He would pay no attention whatever to any suggestions from me until he had faced and surmounted the present emergency, for such I knew he considered it.

"Well, what d'ye want me to do; hit it up and trail 'em?"

"You know better than that," Gus said. "You stop now and get back to that turn-off we just passed. If you step on it there'll be little chance of their trying the same dodge to see what we're doing. They may have stopped beyond that curve, you know, to wait for us, or they may be going on. Anyway, we'll have to chance it."

The driver already had slowed the big car to a stop and was backing it toward the turn-off, Gus and the other man giving him advice on passing cars, which fortunately were few.

Back Road Detour.

"Now," Gus said, "you can turn down." And in another minute we were well off the parkway.

"Have you got a map?" the other man asked.

"Yep, but I don't need it," the driver said. "I know these Connecticut back roads like the back of my hand. I know one road about two miles from here that'll take us up to that Kent neighborhood okay. We won't get there quite as fast as if we'd stuck to the parkway, but it won't make very much difference."

The second man had still another question.

"D'ye think they lamped her?" he asked, with a jerk of his head in my direction.

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, March 14.

The affairs of this day may move at a lively pace, and much may be gained by cleverness, keenness, quick vision, ingenuity and safe judgment despite sudden and upheaving predicaments as well as surprising and baffling reversals or setbacks. While astute and shrewd management may avert real disaster or defeat, yet the mind seems attuned to rashness; it would be well to consult with elders or superiors.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a lively and active year, with much stirring of interest and promise but suddenly there may arise frustrating, irregular and surprising situations that might spell downfall and definite defeat. This calls for keen insight and intuitions, logical and sound judgments and tactics and may be hopelessly jeopardized by emotional, impulsive, eccentric and reckless methods or extremes.

A child born on this day while having much talent and versatility promising success and prestige yet may have eccentric or irregular points of view militating against ultimate progress.

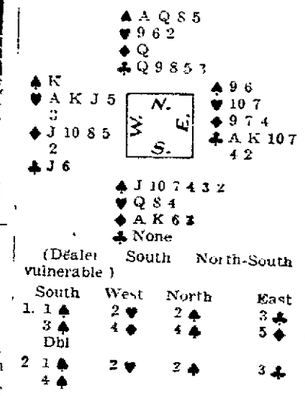
"The Authority on Authorities"

JUMP ALL THE WAY UP

When you have learned from your partner that he has good support for your suit including enough general strength to make a free bid after an intervening overcall, and then the other opponent injects a bid of still another suit, your further action depends upon the type of hand you possess. If your strength is mainly in good high card holdings, there is no hurry. Then it usually will pay to go slow and give the opponents plenty of chance to bid some more, so you may score a profitable double. But if you have great distribution with minimum defensive values you should shut them out of further bidding by jumping immediately as high as you can.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1. 1 ♠	2 ♥	2 ♠	3 ♣
3 ♠	4 ♦	4 ♠	5 ♦
Dbl
2 1 ♠	2 ♥	2 ♠	3 ♣

Notice how South cut our further conversation at table 2 by jumping to 4-Spades, a very sound bid. Also notice what happened at the other table where South made a minimum bid of only 3-Spades on his second turn. That gave West a chance to bid his diamonds at a none too dangerous height. East could feel pretty sure, from the course of the auction that his partner had at least five of them, so made his sound sacrifice bid with only three cards of the suit.

The 5-Diamonds sacrifice was set only two tricks, giving North-South a mere 300 points. The spade A was led for one trick, and later the defenders got three tricks with their high trumps, but that was all.

Where South jumped to 4-Spades over East's 3-Clubs West didn't dare try to show his diamonds at the level of five. So North-South scored a vulnerable game, worth 620 points, losing only the first three tricks, to the heart K, heart A and a heart ruff.

Tomorrow's Problem.

Dealer, East. Neither side vulnerable.)

What is the soundest bidding of this deal?

Daughters of Scotland Knit

GEN. JOHNSON: Press for Limitation of Overtime Pay

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — The curse of comment either by laymen or professionals on any kind of military operations is the tendency to generalize. In war there are too many imponderables for that.

On all appearances the South should not have been able to hold out against the North for a year. The world knows what happened. There were times, for instance the day before the Monitor appeared at Hampton Roads, when it seemed to be anybody's fight.

Gen. Johnson.

Just now there are several widely accepted dogmas. One is that, to be victorious, generals must be young. All other things being equal, youth is a leading consideration and some great commanders have been very young. But others have not.

In proof of their youth theory these pundits cite Stonewall Jackson in the Confederacy, and forget all about Lee and Joe Johnson, who were better generals for supreme command.

They dwell on Napoleon, who had gone stale and sluggish at middle-life before Waterloo, and forget Foch and the elder Von Moltke, the victors of greater wars.

They don't remember MacArthur who is 61, but warn the president to recall that he, too, is of that age.

They rarely mention Ghengis Kahn who was probably the world's greatest military genius and continued victorious into old age. Alexander the Great is their classic example, but they don't often say that he was so handicapped by the follies of the young that he made an ass of himself in most of the known world and died, crocked to the gills, before he had consolidated his conquests

Almost as many examples could be given on one side as the other. That doesn't necessarily answer the argument that in war the vigor and valor and imagination of youth have proved to be great assets. But is is a caution that youth alone is not enough.

That caution is particularly appropriate at the beginning of a war when few officers, either young or ageing, have had a chance to prove what they have on the ball, except the file of annual efficiency reports generally made out by older men and frequently based on the youngsters' orthodoxy and devotion to tradition.

The brash young bolsheviks, as they are called—the innovators—usually get indifferent or adverse reports in the piping times of peace. It is best to wait to see if a young man is also a good man before we go off half-cocked.

Largely due to the clamor of columnists, we are getting new generals young enough to reduce the average age of high command to 48. Many of these appointments are excellent, but in some of them the candidate's outstanding qualities are his lack of important war experience and his ability to say "yes sir" and "very well, sir," with conviction.

Another dogma is that fortifications are soul deadeners for soldiers and that the Maginot line felled France. The pundits in this case forget that the Maginot line was like a wing dam with its left flank "in the air" and improperly guarded and that the victorious Germans had a Siegfried line.

They forget that Malaya and Singapore fell quickly because their approaches were not fortified and that MacArthur's great feats are possible because of the fortification of Corregidor and his almost impregnable mountain defenses in Batan.

None of this is either utterly to condemn or fully to endorse these sweeping theories. It is only to remark that the public is widely taking them for granted, and that in war you can't take anything for granted.

TWO 'MAD DOG' MURDERERS GO TO DEATH CHAIR

Brothers Who Pretended To Be Insane Lifted From Wheelchairs To Die.

(By United Press)

SING SING PRISON, Ossining, N. Y. — Two men, to all outward appearances already dead, were executed for murder last night.

They were the Esposito brothers, Anthony and William, "mad dog" slayers of a payroll messenger and a policeman in a spectacular New York city holdup.

It was their most restrained performance in more than a year of what was presumed to be feigned insanity. They, looking like nothing more than limp cadavers as husky prison guards lifted them from a wheel chair into the electric chair. A moment later each stiffened under the impact of the voltage, then relaxed, lips contorted in a final snarl.

Their sanity had been a matter of dispute since their arrest. During the trial they tore off their clothing, ate paper scraps, drooled and seemed to take no notice of what went on in the courtroom.

After their trial they were brought to Sing Sing, where their symptoms took a new form. Instead of acting ridiculous they refused to do anything and for 10 months appeared to be lapsing into a deeper stupor. They were fed forcibly but lay almost motionless for days. Remaining inert while guards washed them by playing hoses upon them.

So last night Anthony, 37, was lifted into a wheel chair to ride the "last mile," the first condemned man in Sing Sing's history unable to walk to the electric chair.

His brother followed him in like fashion.

The curly-haired Anthony and the pompadoured William, who was 29, had presented quite different appearances at their trial but it was difficult to tell them apart last night. Self-imposed starvation had emaciated them. Neither weighed more than 80 pounds.

Up and Down the Street

It took two physicians and a couple of hospital attendants some time yesterday to convince a weary traveler that she had only a headache and that she should go to a hotel for a rest. The woman, hospital officials said, had gotten off a train here and taken a cab to the entrance, bringing her baggage along. They said they were convinced that she merely wanted a rest and someone to attend her. Physicians reported she was not ill.

Patrolman O. D. Fair found himself in the role of judge last night when the telephone rang at police headquarters and a voice inquired "how much will it cost for hitting a woman?" "If I were the judge I'd make it $100 and 90 days," the officer said. "Oh, that much?" the voice replied as the phone was hung up.

The 43 members of the Business and Professional Women's first aid class found themselves in all kinds of unusual predicaments last night when, working in teams, they improvised situations of all kinds, even to a hanging, to show the various forms of first aid that should be administered on the spot. They also showed how a "first-aider" uses whatever articles that are at hand in cases of emergency. Mrs. W. J. Bishop, instructor, was presented with an $18.75 defense bond by the class for her volunteer services in conducting the course.

Tire thefts in Mansfield are going into reverse or motorists are getting very careless with such precious articles. For the second consecutive day, a resident turned over to police an auto tire and wheel found abandoned. Henry Hopper, Mansfield R. D. 1, told police he found the tire on Trimble road last night. Yesterday Harry Bowman, 303 South Main street, gave police a fairly good tire and wheel which he found abandoned in the front yard of his home.

SENATORS ACT IN SPITE OF OPPOSITION

Nelson Asked For Legislation on Rates of Pay and Extra Shifts.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Bi-partisan efforts to limit overtime pay in war industries were pressed in senate circles today despite opposition from Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Senator Lee (D.-Okla.) asked Chairman Nelson of the war production board to recommend legislation on overtime and ways of putting more shifts on the job, while Senator Reed (R.-Kas.) urged early action on a measure to increase the work week from 40 to 48 hours before extra pay is allowed. The law now provides for time and a half for work over 40 hours.

Lee wrote Nelson after quoting him as saying that time and a half and double time and reluctance of manufacturers to increase the number of shifts were two problems involved to increasing production.

"These two hindrances, it seems to me, can be removed by proper legislation," Lee told the senate yesterday, adding he had long advocated relaxation of the 40-hour week.

Secretary Perkins, heard in closed session by the senate labor committee yesterday on the whole labor and production outlook, was requested to furnish the committee her views on the Reed bill and the general strike situation.

Senators said she gave three reasons for opposing any change in the wage-hour law:

1—That the existing law does not prevent anyone from working longer than 40 hours.

2—That any change would not affect organized industries with union contracts calling for overtime, but would affect only unorganized workers who already are working longer hours without bonuses.

3—That overtime pay now amounts to only three per cent of war production payrolls and production might be lowered and morale broken by making workers toil longer hours for the same pay.

Miss Perkins was reported to have told the committee that men in war industries were already working an average of between 48 and 53 hours. She added, members said, that there was a shortage of materials in some industries, but that there was "no real labor shortage" at this time.

Miss Perkins conceded that machines should be worked longer but disagreed with Nelson and others who have advocated using all of them 24 hours a day and 168 hours a week.

ADMITS HE HIT SLAIN WOMAN

Witness Asserts He Struck Victim Prior to Death at Lima Hospital.

LIMA—James V. Maloney, 28, a witness in his own defense, admitted striking Mrs. Goldie Siler several hours before she was found slain last Nov. 6.

Maloney, charged with second degree murder in the silk stocking garroting, said he knocked Mrs. Siler down and left her on a footpath at the Lima State hospital the night of Nov. 5.

The factory worker said he returned a few minutes later and attempted to carry her into the nurses' home of the institution, where she was a matron.

"She was too heavy, though," he testified, adding that he dragged her about 35 feet, left her lying near a tree and then went into town.

Relating events leading to the incident, Maloney asserted that he slapped Mrs. Siler while they were riding in a taxicab after leaving a night club. He said he struck her both times because she attempted to become familiar with him.

The first blow, he declared, brought blood to the woman's lips, which she wiped away with his handkerchief. He said he then tossed it out the window.

Mahoney testified he was held incommunicado by police for eight days, and that persons questioning him called him a "liar and crazy."

DEFERRED MEN OFFERED CHANCE TO GET COMMISSIONS IN ARMY

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — New opportunities for men deferred from military service because of dependency to qualify for army commissions were announced today by Fifth Corps Area headquarters at Columbus.

Maj. Gen. Daniel Van Voorhis explained that applicants for officer training must be classified as 1-A except for dependency and must meet officer requirements for character and physical fitness.

They should, he said, apply to local draft boards for officer training and preliminary physical examination and blood tests. If they meet requirements they will then be sent to reception centers for final physical examination and qualification tests, but all expenses must be met by them personally, except medical fees.

After these tests are made, applicants will return home to await notification from local boards to report to replacement training centers for basic training, the same as any enlisted man or draftee. When they have completed three months' training they may have 15 days more to make formal application for officer training.

However, if the candidate fails to qualify for a commission or is not chosen for one after a total of four months' training he may request relief from active duty and be transferred to the reserve to await call as a 3-A draftee.

11 PIGS STOLEN

Animals Missing From North Main Road Farm.

Farm animal thefts in Richland county continued to mount today as Mrs. Joseph Bush reported 11 pigs weighing about 80 pounds each missing from her farm near Tillman's park north of Mansfield.

She told Sheriff Frank E. Robinson the pigs were five or six months old. They were black and white spotted. Sheriff's officers said there was no truck tire tracks or footprints near the pen to provide a clue.

A number of animals, including sheep, pigs, and calves, have been stolen in recent weeks in the county, the sheriff's records show. The increase in the number of thefts was attributed to the high cost of meat and other foods.

Sheriff Robinson urged farmers to help track down the thieves by obtaining the license numbers and descriptions of any suspicious cars seen frequently near farms and reporting the information to the sheriff's office.

177 Patients in Hospital; Capacity Nearly Reached

Despite a recent addition which added 23 beds, Mansfield General hospital was taxed to near capacity today with a record number of patients.

A total of 177 patients were listed on the records this morning, approximately 30 above the average, L. O. Fonkalsrud, supervisor of public relations, reported. The number, highest in the history of the 24-year-old institution, is expected to be reduced to 150 by night.

Present bed capacity of the hospital is 183. Average number of patients, Fonkulsrud said, is 147.

Influx of patients, Fonkalsrud explained, was due, in part, to the group hospitalization plan which was started in Mansfield a year and a half ago.

This plan, he said, had produced a noticeable increase in the number of patients admitted to the hospital, although the period of confinement was not necessarily as long as had been previously.

Hospital records show that a total number of 1,004 patients have been admitted so far this year. Last year 896 were admitted during the same period.

In 1940 patients admitted numbered 4,618. Last year the total was 5,478, an increase of 860.

Now one of the most popular books on demand at the Mansfield Public Library Bellaman's story has 23 names on the waiting list a greater number than any other piece of fiction has just now.

William Harwell, Ohio manager, saw the picture at a private screening recently, said that the top-flight cast includes Ann Sheridan, Robert Cummings, Ronald Reagan, Betty Feld, Claude Rains and Maria Ouspenskaya.

EMPLOYED BY BOARD

Jack Benny Comedy.

"To Be Or Not To Be," a melodramatic comedy dealing with the relations of a group of "ham" actors with the gestapo in Poland and starring Jack Benny and Carole Lombard, opens at the Ohio theater Saturday. This is the last picture Miss Lombard made before her death in a plane crash and it presents her as a participator in the underground movement. The story depicts the way a group of actors carry on with the aid of some storm trooper's uniforms after they are confronted by the Nazis. They impersonate every important German figure from Hitler on down and have a hectic time doing it. The cast includes Lionel Atwill, Robert Stack and Stanley Ridges.

Broadway Story.

The gay story of a glamorous Broadway actress and her philandering-playwright husband is amusingly depicted in the Loretta Young-Frederic March co-starring vehicle, "Bedtime Story," opening today at the Madison. Miss Young plays an actress who wants a life of domestic tranquility but is unable to get her husband to visualize the picture. March appears as the husband, and Allyn Joslyn as the other man, who wins the interest of the actress. Robert Benchley and Eve Arden are in the cast. Penny Singleton is featured in "Blondie Goes to College," the second attraction.

New York Drama.

A new situation in the boy-meets-girl theme is presented in "New York Town," the attraction opening at the Ritz today with Fred MacMurray and Mary Martin in the starring roles. MacMurray appears as a sidewalk photographer who takes a small-town girl from Vermont under his wing in an effort to show her how to live in New York without taking a nose dive. Preston Sturges and Akim Tamiroff are in the cast. "Arizona Terrors," with Lynn Merrick and Al St. John is the co-attraction.

Detective Story.

"The Gay Falcon," a detective film, starring George Sanders and Wendy Barrie opens Saturday at the Majestic for a two-day showing. Cesar Romero is featured in "Lucky Cisco Kid," the second picture.

Miami Comedy.

Judy Canova's spontenicty enlivens "Sleepytime Gal," the comedy with music opening Saturday at the Park. She portrays a humble cake-decorator in a Miami hotel who is transformed into a radio songbird by the chief of the bellhops plus the aid of three comedians, Billy Gilbert, Fritz Feld and Jay Novello. Tom Brown has the leading male role with Mildred Coles playing the other half of the romantic team. Harold Huber and Skinnay Ennis are other players. John Howard is featured in "The Man Who Returned to Life," the second picture.

ISSUES PERMITS FOR EXPLOSIVES

Howard Wenning, Richland county clerk of courts, has issued two licenses for the sale and use of explosives in the five days the permits have been on sale, he said today.

One went to County Engineer Howard Sword as a user of explosives in road and bridge work and the other to the Kell Hardware company, Lexington, as a dealer.

All persons in the county who sell or have dynamite or other explosives in their possession must obtain permits, Wenning said. The licenses cost 25 cents each. Applicants must prove their citizenship and show their reasons for handling explosives before the permits will be issued.

The Army quartermaster corps is using substitutes for more than 800 materials now "critical."

Madison high school officials were neither surprised nor discouraged when the North Central Ohio league failed to act on their application for membership the other evening at Galion.

They had been told beforehand that the Rams probably couldn't get into the circuit until one of the present members drops out, since the league likes its five-game football schedule and 10-game cage card.

Madison is happy. "By the time they take us in, maybe we'll be big enough to take care of ourselves," opines the Rams.

There seems to be some difference of opinion around the N. C. O. as to the advisability of accepting Madison as a member.

Bill McKee, Ashland scribe, began beating the drums for Madison last Saturday. He pointed out that Madison has been playing league teams, including Ashland, Mt. Vernon and Galion, and has made a respectable showing, and figures to do better with its growth into Class A competition.

The financial question isn't so important, he maintained, since each league school takes it own home gate.

From this it would appear that Ashland favors Madison membership. BUT — Principal S. F. Jamison of Ashland, president of the N. C. O., found it his duty to discourage the Rams at this time because league membership was already full.

Spiv Harris, Mt. Vernon scrivener, answered McKee in this fashion:

"For our part, NO to Madison. The Rams are barely in Class A, and N. C. O. league football and basketball is none too high grade right now. Other schools in the loop would find themselves in an everything-to-lose and nothing-to-gain position if Madison were accepted.

"If Marion drops out, why not get Mansfield back in? It'd be more fun to lose to the Tygers than to win from the Rams."

McKee fires back at Spiv in this wise:

"Tut, tut, Spiv. It's just never more fun to lose to Mansfield.

"The records don't show that Mt Vernon exactly crucified Madison in their football meetings. In 1938 Mt. Vernon defeated the Rams, then Class B, by 12-0. Last fall it was 19-0."

Perhaps, boys, those scores were close enough to cause Mt. Vernon to fear that some day the Rams would win over the Yellow Jackets.

As for enticing Mansfield back into the N. C. O. fold "if Marion drops out," I don't think it can be done.

The Tygers have had their taste of "big time" football, and like it. Furthermore, the town likes it, as was evidenced when 5,000 Mansfield fans made the trip by train, bus and automobile, to Massillon last fall.

And the best part of the situation here is that Mansfield doesn't expect its Tygers to win all their games in the big time. The city has stood up well under overwhelming defeats by Massillon in the past, and probably can again, if necessary.

The ouster of Bill Query as coach at Shelby high school appears to have raised a community furor in Richland county's second largest town.

Winfield Hancock, president of the Shelby Junior Chamber of Commerce, reports that stories have been circulated to the effect that his organization is behind a movement to get a new coach to replace Query, and issues this statement:

"Any opinions that may have been voiced are those of individuals, and do not reflect the thoughts of the group, since never at any time in any meeting has there been discussion, either pro or con, of the coaching situation."

DiMaggio Gets Pay Increase

Believed Signed For $42,500 By Yankees.

By SID MERCER

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(INS)—The last empty locker but one that belongs to Red Ruffing at Huggins Field had a tenant today. Joe Di Maggio moved in and joined the small squad of late Yankee starters that exercised today at the training field while the rest of the squad moved over to Waterfront Park to engage the Cincinnati Reds.

The Yankee management negotiated a successful retreat and captured the noted rebel by drawing him in. The insurrection ended when General Ed Barrow withdrew to a new line of defense that suited Di Maggio much better than the position taken by the club last week.

The boys are guessing that Joe the Jolter will work for $42,500 next season, an increase of $5,000 over his salary insult last year. He asked for $50,000.

They didn't give him the $50,000 but they split the difference, with DiMaggio getting the smaller portion. So he took the $42,500 and was glad to get it.

There are no bonus provisions in the new agreement nor any sliding salary scale based on Yankee attendance figures next season.

"I am satisfied," DiMaggio said, "and glad to get this thing over with. No, I can't say how we settled our differences. That's up to Mr. Barrow. We had a pleasant talk, no hollering or any of that stuff and it didn't take us long to get together. We were both sick of the thing.

"I realize that this is a tough year to ask for the salary I think I deserved. I didn't want it to become a public argument. For that reason I stayed out on the beach, kept away from everybody and said nothing. I have done a lot of thinking this last month and I hope I have acted for the club's and my own best interest."

Barrow admitted that he had raised the ante above $40,000

"Just say we arrived at a compromise," he explained. "But I don't think it best to reveal the exact figure."

* * *

Asked if the final figure exceeded $40,000, he said: "A little but not so much as you may think."

Dodds Expects Test In Sprint

Meets MacMitchell In Columbian Mile Race.

NEW YORK —(INS)— Advices from Boston relate that Gilbert Dodds expects the showdown of his return engagement with Lesh MacMitchell to come in the final quarter of their Columbian mile duel at the Garden's K. of C. games tomorrow night. That makes it unanimous, because MacMitchell and Coach Emil Von Elling are agreed with experts it will come down to a test of speed in the closing two laps.

The significant feature of the reports from Boston, however, is that Dodds is concentrating on developing his speed for the final test. Aware that if he can't shake the N. Y. U. senior off with a murderous pace in the opening three quarters he will have to outspeed him on the last few straightaways, the Ashland (O.) college graduate is at work on that most important shortcoming.

* * *

Dodds' races in New York have shown that he lacks the 300-yard finishing drive needed for a tight race with great runners.

'Coon Chase Set At Lucas Sunday

A 'coon chase will be held Sunday at the Lucas Beagle club grounds with a guaranteed $100 final purse, expected to draw some of the outstanding dogs from Ohio, Michigan Indiana and Pennsylvania Chairman C W. Steward announced today.

* * *

All proceeds of the chase will be used in restocking and maintenance of raccoon in Richland county, Steward said. From funds obtained in chases in 1941 there were 104 raccoon bought and liberated in the county.

* * *

There is plenty of shelter at the Lucas grounds in event of bad weather. The chase is sponsored by the 'coon division of the Richland County Fish and Game Protective association.

WOLVES FAVORED

ANN ARBOR, Mich. —(AP)— Some 85 of the best swimmers in the middlewest gathered here today to try to break Michigan's monopoly on the Big Ten tank title, but the experts saw the Wolverines as a sure bet to sweep to their fourth straight championship. All the teams arrived yesterday for workouts except Ohio State, which is touted to take second place.

NEW FIRST SACKER PROVES REAL DODGER

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.—(AP)—Manager Leo Durocher of the Dodgers has a neat method of making his infielders run during workouts by hitting slow rollers, first to one side and then the other. But First Baseman Les Burge has his own system of combatting Durocher's game. Fielding each ball, he stuffs it into his shirt instead of throwing it back.

Jones Chris-Crafts lost outright claim to the top spot last night when they dropped a 2-1 decision to Ingram-Martin. Mansfield Rug & Linoleum moved into the top tie with a shutout victory over Yuncker's, while Kent Rummel and Ringside scored 2-1 wins to share the leadership.

Huck took top scoring honors with a 609 total on games of 171-213-225, and Jim Weems hit a 600 total on the nose. Weems started out with 149 and wound up with 245, the league's high game.

Five Bouts Booked on Fund Show

Three More Being Lined Up For 40 and 8 Fights.

FIVE bouts have been definitely booked, and three more are being lined up for a benefit amateur boxing show to be staged at the armory Monday night, March 30, by Friendly House for the child welfare fund of Forty and Eight.

* * *

Headlining the eight-bout fistic program will be a pair of five-rounders, while the rest of the fights will be over the conventional three-round route.

Matchmaker Mike Wentz announced today Jack Dillon, jr., of Pittsburgh, son of the old Hoosier Bearcat of 20-some years ago, will rangle with Larry Gwynne, 133, of Columbus, in one of the five-heaters. Gwynne has fought twice in the Boston National Golden Gloves tournament.

The other five-rounder will bring together Charles Hodge, 168, of Columbus, central Ohio champion, and Herb Chambers, 166, of Friendly House.

In three-rounders already booked will be Harry Crawford, 146, Columbus, against Mike Sauer, 145, Friendly House; Charles Justice, 146, of Columbus, who has fought twice in the national A. A. U. tourney, against Jim Alexander, 146, Friendly House: and Bob Lee, 160, Columbus, meeting Herb Schocker, Friendly House.

The remaining three bouts are well on the way toward signing. One would pit Dick Haley, 126, good Columbus open boy, against a nephew of Dr. Dwight Weir who says the lad is good enough for any competition, and the other would bring Charles Frizzell, 126, of Columbus, against an opponent yet to be named.

* * *

Final plans for the show will be made at a meeting of the 40 and 8 committee Monday at 7.30 at the American Legion home.

Rivals Tangle In Semi-Finals

Ashland, Columbian Meet For Sixth Time.

Tonight's semi-final program at the Sandusky district Class A high school basketball tournament has a familiar ring.

Ashland and Tiffin Columbian, meeting in the first game at 7:30, will be clashing in district tournament play for the sixth time. And Ashland has won every game thus far.

Mansfield and Fremont, battling in the second game at 8.45, will be renewing a feud that reached a high peak in a double overtime embroglio last spring.

Fremont, winner of the long contest, fell an easy victim the next night to Ashland, the A's being fresh as daisies after trimming a weak Willard team in the semi-finals.

This year Ashland will have a tougher time of it in the semi-finals, although still favored to win over Columbian. Winner of the Fremont-Mansfield game, and the two teams are now rated even in the dope sheet, shouldn't find Ashland too fresh on Saturday night.

There's a chance that Ashland will lose its tall center, Bartley, for the next game. Bartley pulled up with a charley-horse last weekend, and has been taking a rest from practice this week.

BARONS BATTLE FOR FIRST PLACE AGAIN

CLEVELAND — (INS) — The Cleveland Barons will go into their Saturday night arena game with Indianapolis determined to once more take over the American league lead.

In the lead until last night, the Barons dropped one point behind when Indianapolis defeated the Buffalo Bisons by a 2-0 score, while the Cleveland team remained idle.

Smile? He Beat the Champ:

There's a reason for the big smile flashed by Jimmy Bivins, left, No. 1 challenger for Gus Lesnevich's light heavyweight crown, and a good one, too. That's it, Bivins, Cleveland hitter, soundly thumped Lesnevich in a 10-round over-the-weight bout in Cleveland, thus earning the right to get a crack at Lesnevich's title. Because the champion's handlers claim Bivins attempted to come in under the 175-pound limit for the Cleveland bout, they have announced Bivins won't be given a crack at the 175-pound crown.

Martins Ferry Loses Chance To Defend State Crown

By JOHN CARR
(INS Sports Writer)

Mighty Martins Ferry, defending Class A state champions, today led the fallen legions of two Class A district titlists and three Class B district champs who were eliminated yesterday in the biggest wholesale upset of current tourneys.

Proving that the hottest brand of basketball is played in these survival struggles, Martins Ferry was crushed by Steubenville, 50 to 35, while Canton McKinley, Class A northeastern district titlist, was knocked out at Youngstown by a strong Canton Lehman quintet, 35 to 27.

It was the second time this year that the Big Red from Steubenville had conquered Martins Ferry, having snapped the Rider's 35 win streak earlier in the season.

Waterloo's famed Wonders defending southeastern district Class B champs compelled to replay Jeffersonville because one of their lads, Paul Roach, was over-age when they whipped Jeffersonville last Saturday, were nosed out by the same team yesterday afternoon at Waverly, 33 to 31.

In their previous meeting in tournament competition, Waterloo had walloped Jeffersonville, 37 to 18, with the help of 14 points contributed by Roach. H. R. Townsend, state high school athletic commissioner, re-scheduled the game when Jeffersonville protested that Roach was 20-year-old and therefore ineligible.

Elmore was bumped out of the Class B northwestern district at Fremont, losing 43 to 34 to Webster. Hanover, another district champ, followed the same route when Aberdeen defeated them in the southwestern Class B struggles, 34 to 30, leaving Smithfield, Xenia O. S. and S. and Berlin as the only remaining titlists in the Class B brackets.

Berlin romped over Ostrander, 31 to 26, in the central area as Bremen extended its unbeaten record to 22 games by barely edging out Grove City, 32 to 31.

Gnadenhutten tripped Dresden, 40 to 38, to hand the Dresden lads their second defeat in 23 games and their elimination from the eastern district Class B tourney. Friday night's game brings New Concord, with an unbeaten record of 21 contests, against Bolivar, winners over Gnadenhutten earlier in the season.

With Canton McKinley, the strongest team of the northeastern division eliminated, Lehman, the victor, faces Youngstown East which topped South, 40 to 34. South previously had knocked Rayen out of the tournament. Timken, district champ which has lost one in 17 games, faces Alliance tonight.

Bowling Green kept moving ahead in the northwestern district Class A race at Defiance, by rolling over Napoleon, 31 to 26, and earning the right to meet Perrysville in the finals tonight. Perrysburg nosed Bryan, district champ, out of the tournament with a 39 to 38 defeat last week. The winner will go to Findlay next week-end in the regional playoffs.

* * *

Twenty-nine district champs will emerge this week-end with Toledo, which started Wednesday, winding up their district play for a survivor Monday. Kent will decide its two winners Tuesday.

Sports Plan Share In Army Relief

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Plans were proposed today for baseball, racing and other sports to set aside proceeds of certain days during the season for the benefit of army emergency relief.

Col. John T. Taylor, assistant director of the army public relations bureau, said the Joe Louis-Abe Simon heavyweight title fight March 27 for army emergency relief was "only one of a series of events."

* * *

"Proceeds of the Army-Navy football game undoubtedly will be divided between army and navy relief," he said.

The major and minor leagues were expected to set aside "days" on which the proceeds would go to the fund. Other sports were expected to accede to the proposal.

ABC Gets Two New Leaders

Detroit Team, Brothers Roll Up In Money.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Two new leaders, Majors Cafe of Detroit and a doubles team of Abdoo Brothers, chiropodists from Port Huron, Mich., were posted today among the first five leaders in each division following the liveliest pace set at the American Bowling Congress tournament in the last several days.

Doctors Samuel and Elmer Abdoo were on their way to the doubles leadership, but stumbled when anchor man, Elmer, fouled in the last frame of his third game.

* * *

Dr. Samuel Abdoo had finished his three-game series of 232-201-195 for a 628 total when the prospect of climbing into the top berth un-steadied Elmer. With 167 and 188 games already on the score board, Elmer's foot slipped across the line and the leadership laurels with it. He settled for 227 in his third game, but if he hadn't fouled, the difference of 16 points between what he made and could have made, would have honored their names in first place.

As it was, the two young Michigan chiropodists added their respective totals together for 1210 to place third behind James Marshall and Howard Vautherot of Detroit who rate 1218.

In the evening session, featuring the first appearance of regular teams in several days, the Major's Cafe of Detroit took over fourth place with a 2751 score, one point behind I.T.S. Rubber Heels of Elyria, O.

But Robert Cook, a member of the Open Kitchen Regulars from Chicago, drew the spotlight of attention when he opened with 20, hit nine strikes and then collapsed in the tenth frame with a nine-pin and a miss, to lose his chance of copping the highest individual game scored at the tournament so far. He settled for a 254 game.

Three other Regulars teams howled games over 2700 but the 2726 mark rolled by C. L. Morris-Penn-Jersey American from Chester, Pa., was not high enough to place in the first ten positions.

Seven doubles games passed the 1100 mark in the afternoon while three singles hit the 600 mark. Harold Sharpe, Toledo, Ohio, blasted the pins for a 644 tally but missed moving into the first ten by one pin.

Three Ohio State coaches and two athletic officials are entered in tonight's pin toppling under the banner of the Ohio State coaches. The team comprises Paul Brown, football mentor; Fritz Mackey, baseball coach; Herman Wirthwein, tennis; Hen Taylor, in charge of the ticket sales at the university, and Sam Cobb, director of intra-mural sports.

Taylor, who holds the destiny of those precious fifty-yard tickets at Ohio State football games, will have a fifty-yard spot at the Coliseum on alley 18.

MANGRUM AND LITTLE TIED IN TOURNEY

PALM BEACH, Fla. —(AP)— Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago and Lawson Little of San Francisco, early leaders in the $4,350 victory golf tournament at the exclusive Seminole club here, battled under pressure today to stave off the challenges of 11 other top-flight pros who were in easy striking distance at the half-way mark.

Mangrum and Little fired two-under-par 70's to share the 18-hole lead. Six other players—Jimmy Hines, E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Henry Picard, Harry Cooper, Lester Kennedy, and Gene Sarazen were tied with 71's.

KELLER REPORTS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP)—Charley Keller, whose skin is naturally dark, turned up at the New York Yankee training camp looking like a paleface among the tanned Athlettes. Keller said he felt fine after a winter of idling, placed his weight at around 180, and added that the left ankle which bothered him last year had completely healed.

BOAST STAR LEFTIES

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP)—The Cardinals' five left-handed pitchers might form the strongest southpaw staff in the majors. Last year, the quintet won 71 and lost 31. Thirty-five victories were in the National league and 36 in the minors. The five are Ernie White, Howard Pollet, Max Lanier, Clyde Shoun and Harry Brecheen.

TRIBE BLOWS

CLEARWATER, Fla. — (AP) — The Indians dive into a stiff practice session today to iron out the kinks which have resulted in three straight defeats. Yesterday, when Tribe blew a six-run lead and lost to Washington, 10-7, Jeff Heath made his first appearance of the season as a pinch-hitter in the ninth and watched a third strike.

BABE DIDRICKSON REACHES GOLF FINALS

SAN FRANCISCO—(INS)—Mrs. George Zaharias, the former Babe Didrikson of 1932 Olympic games fame, and Miss Barbara Beach Thompson, of Long Beach, battle it out today for the San Francisco women's open title.

"Babe" won her way into the final round by defeating Mrs. W. C. Haaker, local star, 6 and 5. Miss Thompson advanced by defeating Mrs. Roxie Setrakian, San Francisco, 3 and 2.

PASSES HIS TEST WITH FLYING COLORS

EAST LANSING, Mich.—(AP)—Joe Gerard, who has broken Michigan State records for single season and three-year basketball scoring, was really up in the air when the Spartans met Marquette at Milwaukee recently.

Joe had to stay at home in order to take his final test for a private pilot's license and then jumped into a transport plane and flew to Milwaukee just in time to start the game.

The hurried trip didn't bother him; he got 14 points.

HITS IN TOUGH LUCK

TAMPA, Fla.—(AP)—Frank McCormick, who is supposed to lead the Cincinnati Reds out of the wilderness with .300 hitting, is keeping up a fatal pace on the spring circuit—rolling into one double play a day. He hopes to stop this practice by opening day.

2—Card of Thanks

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need.

STEELS, MOTORS SPARK UPWARD MARKET TREND

Westinghouse Listed Among Issues Edging Into New Low Territory.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Steels, motors and other selected stocks maintained an upward trend in today's market although many leaders still were backward.

Early forward leanings were displayed by U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, Sperry, Phelps Dodge, Dow Chemical, Du Pont, Standard Oil (NJ) and Union Carbide.

Santa Fe dropped about a point. Allied Chemical and Westinghouse edged into new low ground on initial sales.

Some short coverings, as well as reinstatement of sold-out commitments here and there, brokers said, again was based on the idea the market may have been oversold. The better showing of United Nations forces in the southwest Pacific was a prop for sentiment.

Holders of merchandising shares noted the survey of Dun & Bradstreet which found that anticipatory retail spending this week had slackened markedly in most lines. For the country as a whole, however, the agency estimated dollar volume topped the comparable period last year by 12 to 18 percent. The middle west led with year-to-year increases of 19 to 20 per cent.

MANILA FORT HOLDING FIRM

Corregidor Survives Heaviest Bombings on Record; 120 Jap Planes Downed.

on the flank of the Batan peninsula troops, last month.

The jumbo shells cracked the enemy resistance and led to the speedy extermination of the beachhead before the Japanese could land reinforcements.

It is in the theater of aerial warfare that the Corregidor men have taught the Japanese a costly lesson.

Corregidor lies three miles out from Gen. MacArthur's Batan peninsula and eight miles from the southern shore of the bay. The Japanese have Manila, but they can not use its harbor.

Conservatively, the men of the island estimated that the Japanese have dropped 1,500 bombs on them, most of them high explosive and many of them 1,000-pounders, with the addition of some incendiary bombs.

This defense has been put up by a garrison which has no fighter planes to protect it. Guns alone have done the work, and for the moment, at least, it seemed as if the Japanese regard the cost in planes prohibitive.

Never has a Japanese plane fleet attacked the island and escaped unscathed. On some days from one-third to nearly one-half the attacking force was shot down.
